Intelligibility, Tones and Young Beginner Learners of Mandarin Chinese Robert Neal, 2025-03-12 Two decades ago Mandarin Chinese seemed set to become a mainstream school subject in Anglophone settings Yet current learning outcomes are generally disappointing Is Chinese too difficult for learners at this level Should it be left to the posh kids with pushy parents Set within the context of teaching and learning Chinese at an inner city secondary school in the North of England and adopting a case study research design this book aims to develop research informed insights into the nature of the pronunciation challenges facing beginner learners of Chinese While existing research has shown that producing native like tones is difficult for Anglophone learners the question of how important tones are for intelligibility has been largely ignored Do heavily accented tones actually matter Which specific areas of the learners speech signal mislead their listeners How aware are learners of their own pronunciation errors Teachers of Chinese may not be able to solve entrenched geopolitical tensions but we can lay the foundations for a stronger engagement with China through excellent teaching However before authoritative pedagogical interventions can be made far more understanding is required of not only how adolescent beginners learn Chinese in school settings but also what can be realistically expected of them School

Bullying Phillip Slee, 2016-12-05 To effectively cope with school bullying it is essential to understand the issues underpinning student peer group dynamics in the school classroom and community and this view lies at the heart of the text While the experience of bullying others or being victimized is identified with an individual or group the solution lies with the systems eg community school classroom or family of which the individual is part Particular emphasis is given to the role of prosocial behavior and a strengths based perspective in addressing how students cope with school bullying within a systemic context The text is strongly informed by the author s experience in developing and conducting national and international school based anti bullying and mental health interventions The book advocates a systems based approach to addressing school bullying as illustrated with a program developed and evaluated by the author called the P E A C E Pack A program for reducing bullying in schools This book translates research into practice with a strong evidence based application drawing on an extensive data base Each chapter contains practical information and research on school classroom community applications trends and issues in the field and practical ideas for implementing anti bullying measures The first two sections consider ways to promote positive peer relations in schools and the dynamics of peer groups Consideration is then given to cyber bullying and to theories explaining violence aggression and bullying Later sections examine the nature and effects of bullying from early childhood through to adolescence on vulnerable groups including students with special educational needs and disabilities and LGBTQ young people The book details information for schools and teachers on ways to collect data and information to inform the interventions and policies of their school School and classroom based resources for teachers counsellors and administrators are identified With school bullying now a matter of international concern not only to children young people and their caregivers but to schools and teachers at the forefront this book will be important reading for all students in psychology education health and social welfare as well as school administrators teachers counsellors and childcare professionals
