Calderón,Gianmaria Martini,Hans Martin Niemeier,António Pais Antunes,2020-12-27 Air Transport and Regional Development Methodologies is one of three interconnected books related to a four year European Cooperation in Science and Technology COST Action established in 2015 The action called Air Transport and Regional Development ATARD aimed to promote a better understanding of how the air transport related problems of core regions and remote regions should be addressed to enhance both economic competitiveness and social cohesion in Europe This book discusses key methodological approaches to assessing air transport and regional development outlining their respective strengths and weaknesses These include input output analysis cost benefit analysis computable general equilibrium models data envelopment analysis stochastic frontier analysis discrete choice models and game theory Air Transport and Regional Development Methodologies aims at becoming a major reference source on the topic drawing from experienced researchers in the field covering the diverse experience and knowledge of the members of the COST Action The book will be of interest to several large groups First it will serve as an authoritative and comprehensive reference for academics researchers and consultants Second it will advise policy makers and government organizations at European national and regional levels Third it presents invaluable insights to transport companies such as airports and airline operators Along with the other two books Air Transport and Regional Development Policies and Air Transport and Regional Development Case Studies it fills a much needed gap in the literature Elgar Encyclopedia of Energy Economics Angeliki Menegaki,2025-05-14 This prescient Encyclopedia outlines the breadth and depth of the burgeoning field of energy economics Entries cover a wide range of topics including traditional and renewable energy sources environmental impacts energy efficiency market structures and the economic implications of energy transitions This title contains one or more Open Access chapters Mismeasurement and efficiency estimates:

Evidence from smallholder survey data in Africa Abay, Kibrom A., Wossen, Tesfamicheal, Chamberlin, Jordan, 2022-02-09 Smallholder agriculture in sub Saharan Africa is commonly characterized by high levels of technical inefficiency However much of this characterization relies on self reported input and production data which are prone to systematic measurement error We theoretically show that non classical measurement error introduces multiple identification challenges and sources of bias in estimating smallholders technical inefficiency We then empirically examine the implications of measurement error for the estimation of technical inefficiency using smallholder farm survey data from Ethiopia Malawi Nigeria and Tanzania We find that measurement error in agricultural input and production data leads to a substantial upward bias in technical inefficiency estimates by up to 85 percent for some farmers Our results suggest that existing estimates of technical efficiency in sub Saharan Africa may be severe underestimates of smallholders actual efficiency and what is commonly attributed to farmer inefficiency may be an artifact of mismeasurement in agricultural data Our results raise questions about the received wisdom on African smallholders production efficiency and prior estimates of the productivity of agricultural inputs Improving the measurement of agricultural data can improve our understanding of smallholders production efficiencies and improve the targeting of productivity enhancing technologies
