Mathematics and Transition to School Bob Perry, Amy MacDonald, Ann Gervasoni, 2015-01-09 This edited book brings together for the first time an international collection of work focused on two important aspects of any young child's life learning mathematics and starting primary or elementary school The chapters take a variety of perspectives and integrate these two components in sometimes explicit and sometimes more subtle ways The key issues and themes explored in this book are the mathematical and other strengths that all participants in the transition to school bring to this period of a child's life the opportunities provided by transition to school for young children's mathematics learning the importance of partnerships among adults and among adults and children for effective school transitions and mathematics learning and teaching the critical impact of expectations on their mathematics learning as children start school the importance of providing children with meaningful challenging and relevant mathematical experiences throughout transition to school the entitlement of children and educators to experience assessment and instructional pedagogies that match the strengths of the learners and the teachers the importance for the aspirations of children families communities educators and educational organisations to be recognised as legitimate and key determinants of actions experiences and successes in both transition to school and mathematics learning and the belief that young children are powerful mathematics learners who can demonstrate this power as they start school In each chapter authors reflect on their work in the area of mathematics and transition to school place that work within the overall context of research in these fields predict the trajectory of this work in the future and consider the implications of the work both theoretically and practically

Numerical Development - From cognitive functions to neural underpinnings

Korbinian Moeller, Elise Klein, Klaus F Willmes - von Hinckeldey, Karin Kucian, 2015-02-24 Living at the beginning of the 21st century requires being numerate because numerical abilities are not only essential for life prospects of individuals but also for economic interests of post industrial knowledge societies Thus numerical development is at the core of both individual as well as societal interests There is the notion that we are already born with a very basic ability to deal with small numerosities

Yet this often called number sense seems to be very restricted approximate and driven by perceptual constraints During our numerical development in formal e g school but also informal contexts e g family street we acquire culturally developed abstract symbol systems to represent exact numerosities in particular number words and Arabic digits refining our numerical capabilities In recent years numerical development has gained increasing research interest documented in a growing number of behavioural neuro scientific educational cross cultural and neuropsychological studies addressing this issue Additionally our understanding of how numerical competencies develop has also benefitted considerably from the advent of different neuro imaging techniques allowing for an evaluation of developmental changes in the human brain In sum we are now starting to put together a more and more coherent picture of how numerical competencies develop and how this development is associated with neural changes as well In the end this knowledge might also lead to a better understanding of the reasons for atypical numerical development which often has grievous consequences for those who suffer from developmental dyscalculia or mathematics learning disabilities Therefore this Research Topic deals with all aspects of numerical development findings from behavioural performance to underlying neural substrates from cross sectional to longitudinal evaluations from healthy to clinical populations To this end we included empirical contributions using different experimental methodologies but also theoretical contributions review articles or opinion papers

Muhammad Riaz, Masooma Raza Hashmi, In this paper we introduce some operations on a fuzzy neutrosophic soft set fns set by utilizing the theories of fuzzy sets soft sets and neutrosophic sets We introduce fns mappings by using a cartesian product with relations on fns sets and establish some results on fixed points of an fns mapping We present an algorithm to deal with uncertainties in the multi criteria decision making to slenderize energy crises by using an fns average operator and a comparison table for fns sets

Fractional-in-Time Semilinear Parabolic Equations and Applications Ciprian G.

Gal, Mahamadi Warma, 2020-09-23 This book provides a unified analysis and scheme for the existence and uniqueness of strong and mild solutions to certain fractional kinetic equations This class of equations is characterized by the presence of a nonlinear time dependent source generally of arbitrary growth in the unknown function a time derivative in the sense of Caputo and the presence of a large class of diffusion operators The global regularity problem is then treated separately and the analysis is extended to some systems of fractional kinetic equations including prey predator models of Volterra Lotka type and chemical reactions models all of them possibly containing some fractional kinetics Besides classical examples involving the Laplace operator subject to standard namely Dirichlet Neumann Robin dynamic Wentzell and Steklov boundary conditions the framework also includes non standard diffusion operators of fractional type subject to appropriate boundary conditions This book is aimed at graduate students and researchers in mathematics physics mathematical engineering and mathematical biology whose research involves partial differential equations
