Introduction Background

Emotions play a key role in human survival (LaVelle, Bore, Aslinia & Morriss, 2013). However, the reactions may cause harm. Anger is a sentiment that ranges from mild infuriation to intense frenzy. Generally, the state has both positive and negative effects on an individual (LaVelle et al., 2013).

Understanding Anger

Anger is one of the most basic human sentiments (Reilly, Shopshire, Durazzo & Campbell, 2002). It is associated with three reaction states. The states include fight, flight, and freeze. It keeps the human body and mind stimulated and ready to react. The reason behind the stimulation and reaction is because it triggers the sympathetic nervous system.

When angry, various body processes are altered. Individual experiences increased heart rate, blood pressure, and breathing. The changes compel a person to work hard both mentally and physically so as to respond to the issue causing the anger (Schinnerer, 2010).

When angry, people have three choices (Rempel, 2012). They can either be aggressive, passive-aggressive, or assertive. An aggressive reaction results when anger is expressed openly. The primary aim of the reaction is to hurt the other person. The reaction involves threats, verbal insults, and physical actions, such as hitting. The cause of anger is blamed on someone else. The individuals feeling dishonored believe they need to react to the violation (Morland et al., 2011).

A passive-aggressive response involves repressing anger (Willner et al., 2013). The individual will keep their feelings to themselves until they blow up. An assertive reaction is experienced when the rage is expressed directly in a non-intimidating manner. The reaction results in no harm. The individual considers the feeling to be tolerable. Such
