Teaching

Practices and Equitable Learning in Children's Language Education Giannikas, Christina Nicole, 2021-03-26 Educating children and leading them towards the path of bilingualism is a valuable and challenging task for any educator. Effective language teaching can contribute to young learners' cognitive growth, develop their problem-solving skills, enhance their comprehension abilities, and provide children with the satisfaction of succeeding in the challenge of learning a foreign language. All these issues must be taken under consideration when researching children and their teachers. The current literature indicates that further material is needed to provide professionals with different classroom situations and enhance the art of teaching children. Teaching Practices and Equitable Learning in Children's Language Education focuses on various perspectives of efficient practices, approaches, and ideas for professional development in the field of young language learners. The chapters in this book link the theoretical understanding and practical experience of teaching children languages by concentrating on teaching practices, material design, classroom management, reading, speaking, writing, and more. This book is designed for inservice and preservice teachers, administrators, teacher educators, practitioners, stakeholders, researchers, academicians, and students interested in the field of early language learning and applied linguistics at large.

Health Promotion Practice: Building Empowered Communities Laverack, Glenn, 2007-04-01 The book provides an excellent combination of broad theoretical background with a generous helping of vocational guidance on the practice of health promotion. A very welcome addition to the practical side of health promotion, Laverack's brief and simply worded text weaves together just the right balance of theory, evidence, tips, and case studies to satisfy the new learner looking to gain a grasp of health promotion's empowering whole while still offering new insights to the more seasoned practitioner. Ronald Labont, Institute of Population Health, University of Ottawa. How can health promotion practitioners help communities to become more empowered? How do you encourage different communities to work together towards a shared goal? How can you focus your resources to be most effective in building empowered communities? How do you evaluate your success and failures in building empowered communities? Power and empowerment are two complex concepts that are central to health promotion practice. People experience empowerment in many different ways, and this book explains an approach that has been used by health promoters to intentionally build and evaluate empowerment. The book provides a special focus on communities and is illustrated throughout with useful field experiences in the United Kingdom, Asia, North America, the Pacific region, and Africa. The book aims to provide the reader with an understanding of the key concepts of power and empowerment and the link to improved health outcomes in the context of health promotion programmes. An understanding of practical approaches that can be used in health promotion programming to build and evaluate empowered communities. Case study examples of how communities can be empowered in practice. This unique book offers sound theoretical principles to underpin the practical approaches used to build empowered communities and brings together new and innovative approaches in health promotion practice. Health Promotion Practice is essential reading for health promotion students and practitioners who want to learn more about innovative approaches to build empowered communities in their everyday work It will inspire them to work in more empowering ways in health promotion practice and to carefully contemplate how they can influence the way others gain power Successful Project Management Larry Leon Richman,American Management Association,2011
