
CHAPTER 7

TIMBER STRUCTURES¹

FOREWORD

The material in this chapter is written with regard to typical North American Railroad Timber Trestles and other timber structures mentioned herein with

- Spans up to 16 feet,
- Standard Gage Track,
- Normal North American passenger and freight equipment, and
- Speeds of freight trains up to 80 mph and passenger trains up to 90 mph.

Special provisions for longer spans and/or higher train speeds should be added by the company as necessary.

This chapter is presented as a consensus document by a committee that comprises railroad engineers, engineers in private practice, engineers involved in research and teaching, and other industry professionals having substantial and broad-based experience designing, evaluating, and investigating timber structures used by railroads. Therefore, as an ongoing concern, the recommendations printed herein are updated in response to changes in the operating environment, changes in the designations and availability of material and material systems, advances in design and maintenance practices, and advances in the state of knowledge overall. These recommendations have been developed and are intended for routine use and might not provide sufficient criteria for infrequently encountered conditions. Professional judgement must be exercised when applying the recommendations of this chapter as part of an overall solution to any particular problem.

In general, this chapter is revised and printed anew on a calendar-year basis. The latest printed revision of the chapter should be used, regardless of the age of an existing structure. For purposes of determining historical recommendations under which an existing structure may have been built and maintained, it can prove useful to examine previous printed editions of the chapter. However, when historical recommendations differ from the ¹ The material in this and other chapters in the AREMA Manual for Railway Engineering is published as recommended practice to railroads and others concerned with the engineering, design and construction of railroad fixed properties (except signals and communications), and allied services and facilities. For the purpose of this Manual, RECOMMENDED PRACTICE is defined as a material, device, design, plan, specification, principle or practice recommended to the railways for use as required, either exactly as presented or with such modifications as may be necessary or desirable to meet the needs of individual railways, but in either event, with a view to promoting efficiency and economy in the location, construction, operation or maintenance of railways. It is not intended to imply that other practices may not be equally acceptable.
