Arranged Marriage

Arranged marriage is an issue in the Islam and Hindu religion. Muslims and Hindus don't think it's an issue, though. They believe that it's a good thing, to make your daughter marry a man she barely knows just because his family is a "good family." Marrying your daughter off to a man who she barely knows is like judging a book by its cover. You buy the book because the cover makes it look interesting. You marry your daughter off because the man seems like he and his family are the right match for her. Just because they look like a good family doesn't mean they actually are. Some Hindus marry off their daughter when she is only in her pre-teens. I don't understand why, especially when they marry her off to a man in his twenties or thirties. Arranged marriage should be illegal because women should have the right to know whether or not they're getting married and girls, as young as ten years old, are getting married.

Women should have the right to know whether or not they're getting married. Pinar Ilkkaracan states that, "More than half of women (50.8 percent) were married without their consent and 45.7 percent were not even consulted about their partner or the marriage. Those who had not met the husband before the marriage constituted 51.6 percent of the participants" (4). Ilkkaracan's point is that a little less than half of women don't even know they're going to get married, much less to who they're going to marry. In the article, "Islamic Restrictions on Turkish Women's Sexual Behavior Violate Their Rights," Ilkkaracan states, "Under the Turkish Civil Code, the consent of both the woman and the man is a precondition for marriage, yet women
