

Arranged marriages

6 pages | 1325 words

I find it difficult to see how anyone could possibly approve of arranged marriages. In an arranged marriage, the bride and groom are selected by a third party rather than each other. Arranged marriages are most common in the Middle East and parts of Africa and Asia - however with 55% of marriages in the world being arranged- you would be likely to find cases of arranged marriages anywhere you go. There are many different types of arranged marriages which follow all different rules and traditions to ensure it goes smoothly, but none of these allow you to pick the right partner yourself. I intend to put my personal views across, my view that arranged marriages are - and always will be - a violation against human rights. The main formula for life goes something like: have a childhood, get an education, get a job, have children, and grow old. However, many people following that formula tend to do something extreme, involuntary perhaps - fall in love. People in love will want to spend the rest of their life with the person they love, and the most logical way of ensuring this is through marriage. Marriage is a commitment shared between two people, a legal contract binding them together for life. How can people want to partake in such commitment with someone, they hardly know, let alone love?

If a marriage is arranged by someone else, then it isn't based on the grounds of which most marriages take place - love. Call me a romantic, but a marriage without love sounds like a very troublesome, difficult thing. By having your wedding arranged by someone else, this is taking away your free will - and furthermore denying you of the natural emotion of love. This is one of life's many rare experiences, and I think every human should be guaranteed the free ability to get to know someone, fall in love, and as a result, get married. Through arranged marriage, you are agreeing to commit your life to someone whom you don't know much about, by doing this, you are choosing to dedicate your whole entire life to a person - who may turn out to be nothing like you expect.

Furthermore, not everyone in the world is genuine, and a lot of people would arrange a marriage for their children or someone close to them with their own selfish concerns in mind. In under-developed countries, where lots of people live in poverty, some parents will choose to marry off their children to people of a higher social status - increasing their own honour and wealth, and the happiness of the parents may overshadow the children's. As much as this could be an easy escape from a hard life - we must consider the effects this could have on the people getting married. Their spouse isn't being picked to suit them - so without common interest's etc- there is a poor chance the couple will get on, which will then lead to an unhappy marriage and perhaps a hard life, taking the person in a broken...

Gender and Sexual Identities in Transition Patricia Bou, José Santaemilia, 2009-05-05 The aim of this volume is to offer an international panorama of gendered and sexualised experiences with new and original data collected from a variety of cultural settings and sociopolitical contexts We look at many parts of the world Japan Sweden Poland Cyprus Spain US Australia Canada Hungary with different assumptions and expectations often revealing various research practices and traditions Gendered or sexualized discourses are unstable constructions in permanent transition in a perpetual struggle to gain social legitimacy and to counter the workings of opposite discourses They constitute privileged vantage points from which one can observe and judge power relationships New identities are created and reproduced refused and challenged This volume explores among other issues the perpetuation of hegemonic masculinity in Evangelical universities the pharmaceutical industry s promotion of biometaphors involving a shopping strategy which revolves around compulsory heterosexuality the perpetuation of Greek Cypriot men s sexual superiority over women the Catholic Church s attempt to impose a restrictive view of religion and of sexual ethics the consolidation of American TV shopping channels as a setting where middle class femininity and consumption are linked stereotypically the negotiation of gender and sex related norms in groups of British Bangladeshi girls

Even heterosexuality as the unmarked form of sexual identity and the primary site for the reproduction of gender difference needs to reassert its normative and prescriptive status maybe through the silent workings of tradition By suggesting the concept of transition we resist seeing the idea of identity as a fixed and definitive category Gender and sexual identities are never at rest One is never finished developing into a woman or a man or any other gender sexual identity Contributors include Joan Pujolar Andrea Simon Maeda Allyson Jule Stina Ericsson Agnieszka Kie kiewicz Janowiak Joanna Pawelczyk N ra Schleicher Elli Doukanari Pilar Garc s Conejos Lidia Tanaka Jos Santaemilia and Pia Pichler Academic Writing Ilona Leki, 1998-07-13 This book provides instruction on the process writers go through to produce texts It teaches attention to form format and accuracy The central goals of the Student s Book are to teach the process that writers go through to produce texts and to provide instructions on how to meet the demands of the academy by attention to form and accuracy One half of the book is devoted to leading the student through the process of writing from observation and experience About a quarter of the book focuses on helping the student solve the writing problems typical of university level course work The remaining part of the book contains an anthology of readings that correspond to the assignments used in the earlier portions of the text Through an emphasis on the academic applications of writing and on exploring processes and strategies this text helps students produce prepare and polish their writing Description from <http://www.amazon.com> April 19 2012
