Educational Research for Social Justice Alistair Ross, 2021-06-22 This book presents a series of analyses of educational policies largely in the UK but some also in Europe researched by a team of social scientists who share a commitment to social justice and equity in education We explore what social justice means in educational policy and practice and how it impacts on our understanding of both educational science and the public good Using a social constructivist approach the book argues that social justice requires a particular and critical analysis of the meaning of meritocracy and of the way this term turns educational policies towards treating learning as a competition in which many young people are constructed as losers We discuss how many terms in education are essentialised and have specific and different meanings for particular social groups and how this may create issues in both quantitative survey methods and in determining what is the public good We discuss social justice across a range of intersecting social characteristics including social class ethnicity and gender as they are applied across the educational policy spectrum from early years to postgraduate education We examine the ways that young people construct their identities and the implications of this for understanding the public good in educational practice We consider the responsibilities of educational researchers to acknowledge these issues and offer examples of researching with such a commitment We conclude by considering how educational policy might contribute to a socially just equitable and inclusive public good

Networks of Belonging Estelle Boyle, 2025-08-28

Networks of Belonging examines how digitally networked communication technologies create spaces of belonging for people of refugee and migrant backgrounds in resettlement contexts focusing on Australia. The internet has become a primary facilitator for social connection transforming how displaced and mobile people maintain relationships across distance. For communities facing significant barriers to connection such as globally dispersed social networks and often the inability to return to their place of origin, digital technologies can offer vital pathways to belonging and social inclusion in new environments. The book begins by considering the history of refugee and migrant inclusion in Australia and the historical practice of migrant letter writing as a critical analogue reference point to today's digital ubiquity. By investigating how communication technologies enable access to social connection particularly among those navigating resettlement, the research offers lived perspectives on the evolving nature of digital sociality and its importance for refugee and migrant communities. Three key dyadic relationships of interstitiality frame the analysis: Inclusion/exclusion, digital/physical and local/global. This approach highlights the nuances of situated lives and personal narratives gathered through qualitative interviews and photo elicitation with people of refugee and migrant backgrounds in Melbourne, Australia, while advocating for a relational understanding of social inclusion/exclusion and belonging, digital and physical sociality, and a local and global sense of place. This book will be of value to students and researchers across multiple fields including media and communications, refugee and migration studies, social inclusion, multiculturalism, and belonging and digital communication.

Student Empowerment in Higher Education. Reflecting on Teaching Practice and Learner Engagement Anjoom A. Mukadam, 2020-05-04. Student Empowerment in Higher Education brings together the accumulated knowledge and experience of many accomplished teachers and students from higher education institutions around the world and has much to offer those who are engaged in higher education as students, teachers, or support staff. The authors offer personal reflections in teaching, learning, mentoring, assessment, hands-on activities, course design, and student identities in higher education across the globe, supported by academic research and scholarship. Readers are provided with a window into tried and tested empowering practices in varying contexts, enabling them to see what works and what does not, alongside the challenges and possibilities. A distinctive feature of this book and its paramount strength is that it explores best practices in student empowerment whilst reflecting on matters of teaching and learning that are familiar to students and teachers alike, and also explores practices in a variety of disciplines. The intention of these volumes therefore is not only to inform readers about the diverse learning and teaching approaches of the authors but most importantly to facilitate processes of student empowerment and promote reflection on teaching and learning practices. In recent decades, higher education policy discourse has persistently implied that a university education is delivered to students under the impersonal banner of the student experience. Not only does this commodify the diverse individual experiences of students into one marketable product, it also creates false barriers and power dynamics between students and their teachers In Student Empowerment in Higher Education the students and lecturers who collaborated to write this important volume have literally blown such misleading notions out of the window I highly recommend each varied and autonomous chapter to learn what really inspires confidence and success in university students Professor Sarah Hayes Professor of Higher Education Policy University of Wolverhampton The two volumes of Student Empowerment in Higher Education offer the reader rich and varied examples and understandings of student empowerment from around the world The authors provide reflective accounts of learning and teaching from diverse perspectives and disciplines which focus on many different areas of practice in higher education It is this variety that will appeal to many readers as the source of ideas and inspiration for numerous possible routes to empowerment With many chapters co authored by students and staff the book models the collective responsibility students and staff have for enhancing student empowerment Dr Catherine Bovill Senior Lecturer in Student Engagement University of Edinburgh Fulbright Scholar Elon University North Carolina USA Visiting Fellow Knowledge Exchange University of Winchester

The New Irish Studies Paige Reynolds, 2020-09-24 The New Irish Studies demonstrates how diverse critical approaches enable a richer understanding of contemporary Irish writing and culture The early decades of the twenty first century in Ireland and Northern Ireland have seen an astonishing rate of change one that reflects the common understanding of the contemporary as a moment of acceleration and flux This collection tracks how Irish writers have represented the peace and reconciliation process in Northern Ireland the consequences of the Celtic Tiger economic boom in the Republic the waning influence of Catholicism the increased authority of diverse voices and an altered relationship with Europe The essays acknowledge the distinctiveness of contemporary Irish literature reflecting a sense that the local can shed light on the global even as they reach beyond the limited tropes that have long identified Irish literature The collection suggests routes forward for Irish Studies and unsettles presumptions about what constitutes an Irish classic

The Menstrual Movement in the Media Maria Kathryn Tomlinson, 2024-11-16 This book investigates the impact of the mediation of menstruation and menstrual activism on young people s knowledge attitudes behaviours and interpersonal relationships Since 2015 the menstrual movement has become increasingly visible on social media and in news media from across the globe In Great Britain the menstrual movement brings together a diverse group of activists who aim to reduce menstrual stigma and tackle menstrual inequities By combining original interviews with 32 menstrual activists and focus groups with 77 young people including women men and non binary teenagers this book offers an in depth exploration of this movement and its impact This book argues that menstrual stigma has decreased awareness around related health and social issues has increased and girls as well as other menstruating young people are feeling an increased sense of connection and solidarity with each other Menstruation is shifting from a very private experience to one of collective concern It is evident that social media and to some extent news media have played a key role in disseminating the discourses and aims of menstrual activists that have engendered some of these changes Nevertheless this book also examines how the media have negatively impacted young people and identifies further changes that are necessary for the achievement of gender equality This book makes a significant contribution not only to the fields of health communication feminism social movement studies and critical menstruation studies but also provides evidence and recommendations that will be of interest to NGOs advocacy groups policymakers schools workplaces and medical professionals This is an open access book
