

All My sons

Arthur Miller

Short summary:

Joe and Kate Keller had two sons, Chris and Larry. Keller was a successful businessman owned a manufacturing plant with Steve Deever, and their families were close. During the war, Keller's and Deever's manufacturing plant had a very profitable contract with the U.S. Army, supplying airplane parts. One morning, a shipment of defective parts came in. Keller didn't want to slow business he sent a group that he knew to be defective (not working perfectly), and twenty-one pilots died as a result.

Steve and Keller were arrested, but Keller claimed that the parts went out without his knowledge and that his partner was the one who had covered it up. Keller went home free, while Steve remained in jail.

Larry, was missing in action, but his mother insisted that he was still alive. Later we learn that he committed suicide on learning of his father's arrest.

Chris has asked Ann (Steve's daughter and Larry's old girlfriend) to marry him. Ann's brother George arrived to stop the wedding. He had gone to visit Steve in jail to tell him that his daughter was getting married, and then he left newly convinced that his father was innocent and convinced of Keller's guilt. Chris's confidence in his father's innocence is shaken, however, and in a confrontation with his parents, he is told by Mother that he must believe that Larry is alive. If Larry is dead, Mother claims, then it means that Keller killed him by shipping out those defective parts.

Mother told Keller that he ought to volunteer to go to jail if Chris wanted him to. She also talked to Ann and continued insisting that Larry is alive. Ann was forced to show Mother the letter that Larry wrote to her before he died, which was essentially a suicide note. The note basically confirms Mother's belief that if Larry is dead, then Keller is responsible—not because Larry's plane had the defective parts, but because Larry killed himself in response to the family responsibility and shame due to the defective parts.

Keller entered, and Mother was unable to prevent Chris from reading Larry's letter aloud. Keller now finally understood that all the dead pilots were his sons. He says that he was going into the house to get a jacket, and then he would drive to the jail. But a moment later, a gunshot is heard—Keller has killed himself.

I Don't Need an Acting Class Milton Justice,2021-11-01 I Don t Need an Acting Class explores critical aspects of the technique of acting utilizing conversations via email with countless actors Some are aspiring students others are seasoned professionals The conversations document the challenges these diverse actors face as they digest what they have learned in a class or rehearsal while exploring in practical terms how to use their growing technique Milton Justice first began receiving emails from actors in 2008 In this book Justice brings together email conversations between teacher and student along with observations and commentary about acting technique and craft Not all of the emails in the book are overly thought out or complete Quite the contrary they are meant to capture the feeling of a living breathing process as it happens When an actor sends a teacher or director an email with a problem be it a simple comment or confusion it is evidence of a creative artist exploring new ground Many years ago Stella Adler sent Justice a letter in response to a panicked note he had written to her while lost in the weeds during rehearsals for a new play She set a tone for him as she succinctly defined the problem and reminded him of its elegant solution He was overwhelmed by the care she had given him That letter still hangs over his desk perfectly demonstrating the power of a written exchange between a teacher and a student
