Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies Appropriations for 2016: USDA Inspector General; USDA Food Safety and Inspection Service; Commodity Futures Trading Commission; Farm Credit Administration United States. Congress. House. Committee on Appropriations. Subcommittee on Agriculture, Rural Development, Food and Drug Administration, and Related Agencies, 2015 Food Safety for Farmers Markets: A Guide to Enhancing Safety of Local Foods Judy A. Harrison, 2017-10-20 This book describes practices used on farms and in farmers markets selling foods directly to consumers in U S and international markets It identifies hazards associated with those practices that could put consumers at increased risk for foodborne illness It also provides tools for identifying hazards on farms and in markets and guidance for establishing food safe markets The local food movement inspired by initiatives such as the USDA s Know Your Farmer Know Your Food Farm to School Farm to Pre school and The People s Garden is sweeping the country Nowhere is this interest more evident than at farmers markets The number of farmers markets has increased almost 400% since the early 1990s with over 8 600 farmers markets listed in the USDA s market directory in 2016 Many of the customers for local markets are senior adults people who may have health concerns and mothers with young children shopping for foods they perceive to be healthier and safer than those available in grocery stores This means that many of the customers may be in population groups that are most at risk for foodborne illness and the serious complications that can result In surveys however farmers selling directly to consumers self reported practices that could increase risk for foodborne illnesses These included use of raw manure as fertilizer without appropriate waiting periods between application and harvest as outlined in the National Organic Program a lack of sanitation training for farm workers handling produce a lack of proper cleaning and sanitizing of surfaces that come in contact with produce and use of untested surface water for rinsing produce before taking it to market Surveys of market managers found that many had limited experience and most had no food safety plans for their markets Observational studies in markets have corroborated self reported practices that could increase foodborne illness risks including lack of handwashing lack of access to well maintained toilet and handwashing facilities use of materials that cannot be cleaned and sanitized appropriately and lack of

temperature control for foods that must have time and temperature controlled for safety These potential food safety risks are not only seen in U S farmers markets but also have been identified in international markets This book is unique in that it provides evidence based information about food safety hazards and potential risks associated with farmers markets It presents an overview of farm and market practices and offers guidance for enhancing food safety on farms and in markets for educators farmers producers vendors and market managers Dr Judy A Harrison is a Professor in the Department of Foods and Nutrition at the University of Georgia UGA where she has been named a Walter Bernard Hill Fellow for distinguished achievement in public service and outreach Serving as a food safety specialist for UGA Cooperative Extension she has provided 25 years of food safety education for a variety of audiences across the food system International Journal of Science, Technology, Engineering and Mathematics Stephanie Gayle B. Resilient Kitchens Philip Gleissner, Harry Eli Kashdan, 2023-05-12 Immigrants have left their mark on the great melting pot of American cuisine and they have continued working hard to keep America s kitchens running even during times of crisis like the COVID 19 pandemic For some immigrant cooks the pandemic brought home the lack of protection for essential workers in the American food system For others cooking was a way of reconnecting with homelands they could not visit during periods of lockdown Resilient Kitchens American Immigrant Cooking in a Time of Crisis is a stimulating collection of essays about the lives of immigrants in the United States before and during the COVID 19 pandemic told through the lens of food It includes a vibrant mix of perspectives from professional food writers restaurateurs scholars and activists whose stories range from emotional reflections on hardship loss and resilience to journalistic investigations of racism in the American food system Each contribution is accompanied by a recipe of special importance to the author giving readers a taste of cuisines from around the world Every essay is accompanied by gorgeous food photography the authors snapshots of pandemic life and hand drawn illustrations by Filipino American artist Angelo Dolojan      COVID-19: Food System Frailties and Opportunities

Claire Kremen, Elliot Berry, Rachel Bezner Kerr, Patrick Meyfroidt, Ivette Perfecto, Todd Rosenstock, José Antonio Teixeira, Hannah Wittman, 2023-11-21 The global coronavirus pandemic is revealing major weaknesses inequities and system wide risks in global food systems giving renewed urgency to foster pathways to greater food system sustainability and resilience Due to rising unemployment supply chain disruptions and other responses to the pandemic such as disruptions to social assistance programs in some countries predictions suggest a near doubling of food insecurity globally Nutritional changes are also occurring as food availability and access changes leading to substitution of dry canned or processed foods for healthier fresh ingredients for some communities and the reverse for others These food security and nutritional changes are likely to be as impactful on human health as the virus itself As a system wide shock the pandemic reveals weaknesses of global supply chains The media highlighted empty supermarket shelves alongside food dumping in situations where producers locked into disappearing food service outlets were unable to access new markets Farmers with long standing reliance on migrant agricultural labor that can no longer travel across international borders under lockdown struggle to access support for the upcoming harvest season The pandemic highlights well known inequities for marginalized food systems employees as essential workers are exposed to greater risks of contracting the virus in food processing agricultural and grocery store settings but have little choice in accepting these conditions in order to keep these low paying jobs The pandemic reinforces another well known food system inequity marginalized and impoverished minorities often suffer from diet related diseases i e cardiovascular diseases diabetes and or malnutrition that place them at greater risk of morbidity and mortality from the coronavirus Lockdowns and border closures are reducing economic opportunities such as day labor and agricultural markets in some regions such as much of Africa ensuing risks of food and nutrition insecurity for vast segments of the population threaten to set back development increase social conflict and catalyze migration Finally the current pandemic shines a spotlight on the systemic risk of infectious diseases to emerge and become globalized through local bushmeat markets and international wildlife trade and how wildlife hunting and trade is influenced by land use changes including by industrial agriculture At the same time adaptive responses to the coronavirus illustrate how more resilient and sustainable food systems could evolve going forward To avoid supply chain disruptions communities are increasing their reliance on local food systems including an increase in urban gardening and community supported agriculture programs Small scale farmers are innovating to connect with buyers and with each other including through new online marketing initiatives Entrepreneurs are identifying foods that would otherwise be wasted and directing them to food banks Retailers and wholesalers are re configuring their distribution networks to shift food to where it is needed most Food pantries local producers and food businesses are also collaborating with municipal governments to address food security gaps arising from COVID 19 impacts

Lathyrus sativus and Nutrition Michele Barone, Rita Tulumello, 2020-10-07 This book addresses the traditional use of a specific crop legume grass pea Lathyrus sativus as a food product and ingredient for typical food products Grass pea has very interesting nutritional qualities including an abundance of proteins and peculiar organoleptic properties As the crop also shows an enhanced resistance to adverse conditions it is used in many geographical areas as the main ingredient of certain traditional foods On the other hand grass pea is questionable as a source of human and animal nutrition because it contains a neurotoxin N oxalyl L diaminopropionic acid that is known for its neurological effects The related disease is referred to as neurolathyrism and occurs when grass pea based foods are consumed in large quantities The book is divided into five chapters the first of which summarizes the chemical and biochemical properties of grass pea and provides nutritional evaluations The second chapter provides an overview of foods containing Lathyrus sativus around the world while the third describes Italian foods in detail The fourth chapter focuses on the problem of neurolathyrism in connection with human nutrition and health In closing the fifth chapter sheds light on the historical and traditional food products sector from a food traceability and authenticity standpoint
