Adjectives To Describe Mother:

Attachment in Psychotherapy David J. Wallin, 2007-03-06 This eloquent book translates attachment theory and research into an innovative framework that grounds adult psychotherapy in the facts of childhood development Advancing a model of treatment as transformation through relationship the author integrates attachment theory with neuroscience trauma studies relational psychotherapy and the psychology of mindfulness Vivid case material illustrates how therapists can tailor interventions to fit the attachment needs of their patients thus helping them to generate the internalized secure base for which their early relationships provided no foundation Demonstrating the clinical uses of a focus on nonverbal interaction the book describes powerful techniques for working with the emotional responses and bodily experiences of patient and therapist alike

Social Roles and Language Practices in Late Modern English Päivi Pahta, Minna Nevala, Arja Nurmi, 2010 This is a trailblazing volume Too often do studies in historical linguistics adopt social or other theories of yesterday But here we have cutting edge research on social roles identities and practices applied innovatively to historical data leading to new insights not just about Late Modern English but also about the dynamics of language social phenomena and change and lighting the way for future research Jonathan Culpeper Senior Lecturer English Language and Linguistics Lancaster University

The Mental Representation of Trait and Autobiographical Knowledge About the Self Thomas K. Srull, Robert S. Wyer, Jr., 2015-12-03 If there is one topic on which we all are experts it is ourselves Psychologists depend upon this expertise as asking people questions about themselves is an important means by which they gather the data that provide much of the evidence for psychological theory Personal recollections play an important role in clinical theorizing people's thoughts feelings and beliefs provide the principal data for attitudinal research and judgments of one's traits and descriptions of one's goals and motivations are essential for the study of personality Yet despite their long dependence on self report data psychologists know very little about this basic resource and the processes that govern it In spite of the importance of the self as a concept in psychology virtually no empirically tested representational models of self knowledge can be found Recently however several theoretical accounts of the representation of self knowledge have been proposed These models have been concerned primarily with the factors underlying a particular type of self knowledge our trait conceptions of ourselves The models all share the starting assumption that the source of our knowledge of the traits that describe us is memory for our past behavior The lead article in this volume reviews the available models of the processes underlying trait self descriptiveness judgments Although these models appear quite different in their basic representational assumptions exemplar and abstraction models sometimes are difficult to distinguish experimentally Presenting a series of studies using several new techniques which the authors believe are effective for assessing whether people recruit specific exemplars or abstract trait summaries when making trait judgments about themselves they conclude that specific behavioral exemplars play a far smaller role in the representation of trait knowledge than previously has been assumed Finally the limitations of social cognition paradigms as methods for studying the representation of long term social knowledge are discussed and the implications of the research for both existing and future social psychological research are explored Loving Your Mother without Losing Your Mind H. Norman Wright, Sheryl Macauley, 2010-08-01 Trusted counselor H Norman Wright and his daughter Sheryl reveal why the mother daughter relationship doesn't have to control your life or your future With godly wisdom and practical insights this book shows readers how to start building a new relationship with their mothers today

Werner, Ruth S. Smith, 2001 Presents the development of resilience and coping systems in the underprivileged children of Kauai

Overcoming the Odds Emmy E. Werner, Ruth S. Smith, 2019-06-30 Overcoming the Odds looks closely at the lives of an ethnically diverse group of 505 men and women who were born in 1955 on the Hawaiian island of Kauai and who have been monitored from the prenatal period through early adulthood by psychologists pediatricians public health professionals and social workers Werner and Smith trace the impact of a variety of biological and psycho social risk factors and stressful events on the development of these individuals most of whose parents did not graduate from high school and worked as semiskilled or unskilled laborers Incorporating vivid case study accounts with statistical analysis the authors focus on both the vulnerability and the resilience of those who overcame great odds to grow into competent and caring adults They trace the recovery process through which most of the troubled adolescents in the cohort those with histories of delinquency teenage pregnancy and mental health problems emerged with improved prospects in their twenties and early thirties Identifying both the self righting tendencies that enable high risk children later to adapt successfully to work marriage and parenthood and the conditions under which professional and volunteer care is most beneficial Werner and Smith offer concrete suggestions for effective intervention policies Revised

Daily Skill Builders: Reading 4-5 ,

Psycho-Legal Concepts for Parenting in Child Custody and Child Protection Vol. 3 Don Tustin, 2024-12-02 This book identifies a number of topics that arise in child protection where assessments of individual families are required. The author opines that it is essential to use structured instruments when making assessments on complex topics about risk to reduce bias and to maximise objectivity. The author summarises criteria that are required for an assessment instrument to be viewed by scientists as being objective. The book proposes that introducing more objective assessment instruments into the field of child protection will improve the focus and brevity of assessment reports and enable setting of thresholds that distinguish between families who provide good enough parenting from families who should be referred for parenting education and from parents who are unfit parents. The author identifies a number of topics that commonly arise in cases where maltreatment of children is alleged, reviews literature and proposes checklists that can be used to gather data and to form a basis for developing validated assessment instruments for use in child protection. The topics identified are relevant both to therapists as parenting practices can be changed using focused therapy and for legal assessment purposes as topics have been shown to be related to legal concerns about the safety and welfare of children. The overall aim of this book is to encourage greater use of scientific assessment approaches in the field of child protection.
