Abstract The purpose of this study was to determine whether there were differences in the prevalence of self-reported depression between men and women who had been exposed to violence by intimate partners. Data from the National Longitudinal Study of Women's Health are used. Results show that among those who have ever been sexually abused, 10% of men and 16% of women reported being depressed. Among those who have never been sexually abused, 8% of men and 9% of women reported being depressed.
