by Frederick Douglass

General Sherman's March to the Sea

The American Civil War lasted from 1861 to 1865 and was the result of a conflict between northern states and southern states. The war was fought over the issue of slavery. The North wanted to end slavery, while the South wanted to keep it. The war was fought between the Union (North) and the Confederacy (South). The war ended with the Union's victory, and slavery was abolished.

In the early 1800s, large farms called plantations were the main source of food for the Southern colonies. Cotton was the most important crop grown on the plantations. As a result, cotton plantations multiplied throughout the region. Some of the South's best farmers grew cotton and exported it to the North. The South also grew tobacco, rice, and sugar. These crops were also exported to the North. The South's economy was based on agriculture. The South's farmers were very rich. They owned many slaves. The slaves worked the land for them. The South's farmers were very powerful. They controlled the government. They also controlled the economy. The South's farmers were very important. They were the backbone of the South's economy. The South's farmers were very successful. They made a lot of money. The South's farmers were very happy. They lived in big houses. They had many slaves. The South's farmers were very proud. They thought they were the best. The South's farmers were very confident. They knew they were right. The South's farmers were very sure of themselves. They were the best. The South's farmers were the only ones who knew what they were doing. They were the only ones who were successful. They were the only ones who were happy. They were the only ones who were proud. They were the only ones who were confident. They were the only ones who were sure of themselves. They were the only ones who were the best. They were the only ones who were successful. They were the only ones who were happy. They were the only ones who were proud. They were the only ones who were confident. They were the only ones who were sure of themselves.
