TELECOMMUNICATIONS

1. What is telecommunications?

- Telecommunications refers to the transmission of signals, messages, or data over a distance for the purpose of communication. It involves the use of various technologies such as telephones, radios, television, and the internet.

2. What are the main components of a telecommunications system?

The main components include transmitters, receivers, transmission media (such as cables or wireless signals), switches, routers, and communication protocols.

3. What are the different types of telecommunications networks?

- Telecommunications networks can be categorized into several types, including:
 - Public Switched Telephone Network (PSTN)
 - Cellular (mobile) networks
 - Local Area Networks (LANs)
 - Wide Area Networks (WANs)

Analog telecommunications uses continuous signals to transmit information, while digital telecommunications uses discrete binary signals (0s and 1s). Digital telecommunications offers higher quality, reliability, and efficiency compared to analog systems.

Cellular networks divide a geographic area into cells, each served by a base station. Mobile devices communicate with the nearest base station, which connects them to the telecommunications network. As a mobile device moves between cells, the network seamlessly hands off the connection to maintain continuity.

7. What is Voice over Internet Protocol (VoIP)?
