The Turk Who Loved Apples Matt Gross,2013-04-23 While writing his celebrated Frugal Traveler column for the New York Times Matt Gross began to feel hemmed in by its focus on what he thought of as traveling on the cheap at all costs When his editor offered him the opportunity to do something less structured the Getting Lost series was born and Gross began a more immersive form of travel that allowed him to lose his way all over the globe from developing world megalopolises to venerable European capitals from American sprawl to Asian archipelagos And that s what the never before published material in The Turk Who Loved Apples is all about breaking free of the constraints of modern travel and letting the place itself guide you It s a variety of travel you ll love to experience vicariously through Matt Gross and maybe even be inspired to try for yourself

The Men We Loved Danny Kaplan,2006-11-01 Some semi public exclusive male settings most noticeably in the military encourage the production of intimacy and desire Yet whereas in most instances this desire is displaced through humor and aggressive gestures it becomes acknowledged and outright declared once associated with sites of heroic death In his provocative study of interrelations between friendship in everyday life and national sentiments in Israel the author follows selected stories of friendship ranging over early childhood school the workplace and some unique war experiences He explores the symbolism of friendship in rituals for the fallen soldiers the commemoration of Prime Minister Yzhak Rabin and the national infatuation with recovering bodies of missing soldiers He concludes that the Israeli case offers an extreme instance of a much broader cultural phenomenon declaring the friendship for the dead epitomizes the political blood pact between men taking precedence over the traditional blood ties of kinship and heterosexual unions The book underscores nationalism as a homosocial based emotion of commemorative desire
