Advanced Accounting Books For Ipcc Ar5:

Socioeconomic and Environmental Implications of Agricultural Residue Burning Parmod Kumar, Surender Kumar, Laxmi Joshi, 2014-11-20 This book discusses the important issue of the socioeconomic and environmental impacts of agricultural residue burning common in agricultural practices in many parts of the world. In particular, it focuses on the pollution caused by rice residue burning using primary survey data from Punjab, India. It discusses emerging solutions to agricultural waste burning that are cost effective in terms of both money and time. The burning of agricultural residue causes severe pollution in land, water, and air and contributes to increased ozone levels and climate change in the long term. However, appropriate assessments have not been undertaken so far to demonstrate the relevant impact of agriculture-based pollution, especially residue burning. This book addresses this gap in the literature. Punjab has been used as a case study as it is the chief granary of India, contributing to 27.2 percent of the Indian national produce of rice and 43.8 percent of wheat. It is presumed that the findings from this state will be useful not only for other agricultural areas in India but across the world. This book therefore sensitizes policy makers, researchers, and students about the impacts of air pollution caused by agricultural residue burning, a subject not much dealt in the literature and provides a way forward.

Energy and Global Climate Change Anilla Cherian, 2015-10-12 Energy and Global Climate Change: Bridging the Sustainable Development Divide focuses attention on two urgent global development challenges faced by the UN and its member states: access to sustainable energy for all and global climate change. This book presents compelling evidence about an often neglected aspect of the energy-climate change development nexus faced by millions of poor people: problems caused by the use of inefficient and polluting energy sources and the lack of access to sustainable energy services. Based on a detailed examination of major UN global climate change and sustainable development negotiated outcomes over the course of several decades, this book argues in a powerful and insightful manner that intergovernmental negotiated outcomes aimed at solving the climate change and energy access challenges have been restricted by being placed in different negotiating silos. This siloization or compartmentalization has resulted in separate tracks of negotiated outcomes on two inextricably linked global development challenges and has thereby hindered prospects for integrated action. This book points out that the existence of these two silos is especially hard to ignore in light of the urgent UN-led quest for an integrated and universal post-2015 development agenda anticipated to be anchored by new sustainable development goals on energy access and climate change. By addressing the heavy reliance on inefficient and polluting energy services which result in indoor air pollution and short-lived climate pollutants that tragically impact millions of poor people, this book highlights the unique importance of integrated action on the energy-poverty-climate change nexus in the UN's post-2015 development era.

Smart Quintuple Helix Innovation Systems Elias G. Carayannis, David F. J. Campbell, 2018-11-21 This volume examines the relationships among social ecology, innovation, sustainable development, and economic growth The Quintuple Helix innovation model focuses on the interactions among five key elements of society academia industry government culture and the environment with particular respect to harnessing knowledge to promote social political and economic development The Quintuple Helix is a powerful theoretical and practical lens for analyzing and understanding such critical and complex ecological and socioeconomic issues as global warming and climate change and their implications for sustainability The authors provide policy approaches and strategies to help create a balance among the often competing forces of environmental protection innovation entrepreneurship and social and economic growth that will successfully benefit society and protect democratic values Climate Change and Public Health Barry S.
