Non-Polysaccharide Plant Polymeric Materials José Alejandro Heredia-Guerrero, Athanassia Athanassiou, 2016-05-17 Plants are the most important renewable source of feedstock for polymeric materials They are a resource of monomers and macromolecules after the appropriate chemical treatment By analogy with the petrochemistry industry plant macromolecules are depolymerized into simpler units which are generally chemically modified and re bound to produce new polymers The properties of these polymers are usually tailored by small chemical changes in their molecular structure or by the polymerization of plant monomers with other molecules Another interesting strategy for the formation of polymeric materials is the direct use of plant macromolecules in the form of blends composites grafted polymers multilayer systems etc The interactions and assemblies of the different components allow the control of the final features of such materials Traditionally polysaccharides with cellulose as the main protagonist have been the most used substances However as consequence of a growing demand of functional plastics other plant macromolecules habitually considered wastes have started to become valuable raw materials Lignin and plant proteins mainly soy protein wheat gluten and zein are classical examples Also suberin has been highlighted in this field Other plant polymers such as the cutin and the sporopollenin are promising alternatives Furthermore other minority plant polymers e g cutan or algaenan could be potential sources of materials The different chemistry structure intrinsic properties and functions of these macromolecules in the plants are a strong inspiration for the development of novel and interesting polymeric materials Here in this Research Topic we welcome the submission of manuscripts related to the production extraction processability synthesis characterization and applications of non polysaccharides plant materials Machine Learning and Hybrid Modelling for Reaction Engineering Dongda

Zhang,Ehecatl Antonio del Río Chanona,2023-12-20 Over the last decade there has been a significant shift from traditional mechanistic and empirical modelling into statistical and data driven modelling for applications in reaction engineering In particular the integration of machine learning and first principle models has demonstrated significant potential and success in the discovery of bio chemical kinetics prediction and optimisation of complex reactions and scale up of industrial reactors Summarising the latest research and illustrating the current frontiers in applications of hybrid modelling for chemical and biochemical reaction engineering Machine Learning and Hybrid Modelling for Reaction Engineering fills a gap in the methodology development of hybrid models With a systematic explanation of the fundamental theory of hybrid model construction time varying parameter estimation model structure identification and uncertainty analysis this book is a great resource for both chemical engineers looking to use the latest computational techniques in their research and computational chemists interested in new applications for their work Kindergarten of Fractional Calculus Shantanu Das,2020-02-18

This book presents a simplified deliberation of fractional calculus which will appeal not only to beginners but also to various applied science mathematicians and engineering researchers The text develops the ideas behind this new field of mathematics beginning at the most elementary level before discussing its actual applications in different areas of science and engineering This book shows that the simple classical laws based on Newtonian calculus which work quite well under limiting and idealized conditions are not of much use in describing the dynamics of actual systems As such the application of non Newtonian or generalized calculus in the governing equations allows the order of differentiation and integration to take on non integer values
