As Best I Can:

As Best We Can Jeffrey Wainwright, 2020-08-27 As Best We Can Jeffrey Wainwright's seventh collection marks a change of key for the poet. After the elegiac tone of The Reasoner 2016, the poems and sequences included here settle for the poet's present world. They listen to what dreams have to tell and, with humour underwriting their concentration, they worry at the labour and release of creative work. As always in Wainwright, history, personal and political, is alive in the present. The rendering of simple elements in The Window Ledge without commentary is among his most lucid and radical poems. By effacing the 'I', he shares experience most fully with the reader, making and sharing a place.

Doing the Best We Can Fred Feldman, 2012-12-06 Several years ago I came across a marvelous little paper in which Hector Neri Castaneda shows that standard versions of act utilitarianism are formally incoherent. I was intrigued by his argument. It had long seemed to me that I had a firm grasp on act utilitarianism. Indeed, it had often seemed to me that it was the clearest and most attractive of normative theories. Yet here was a simple and relatively uncontroversial argument that showed, with only some trivial assumptions, that the doctrine is virtually unintelligible. The gist of Castaneda's argument is this: suppose we understand act utilitarianism to be the view that an act is obligatory if and only if its utility exceeds that of each alternative. Suppose it is obligatory for a certain person to perform an act with two parts; we can call it A/B. Then obviously enough it is also obligatory for this person to perform the parts A and B. If act utilitarianism were true, we apparently could infer that the utility of A/B is higher than that of A and higher than that of B, because A/B is obligatory and the other acts are alternatives to A/B.

Doing the Best I Can Kathryn Edin, Timothy J. Nelson, 2013-06-01 Across the political spectrum, unwed fatherhood is denounced as one of the leading social problems of today. Doing the Best I Can is a strikingly rich, paradigm-shifting look at fatherhood among inner-city men, often dismissed as deadbeat dads. Kathryn Edin and Timothy J. Nelson examine how couples in challenging straits come together and get pregnant so quickly without planning. The authors chronicle the high hopes for forging lasting family bonds that pregnancy inspires and pinpoint the fatal flaws that often lead to the relationship's demise. They offer keen insight into a radical redefinition of family life where the father-child bond is central and parental ties are peripheral. Drawing on years of fieldwork, Doing the Best I Can shows how mammoth economic and cultural changes have transformed the meaning of fatherhood among the urban poor. Intimate interviews with more than 100 fathers make real the significant obstacles faced by low-income men at every step in the familial process, from the difficulties of romantic relationships to decision-making dilemmas at conception to the often celebratory moment of birth and finally to the hardships that accompany the early years of the child's life and beyond.

Sometimes the Best Presents Can't Be Wrapped B.G. Thomas, 2017-12-25 Ned Balding used to be a decent man until the stress of seemingly countless responsibilities changes him and he becomes cold and driven, the kind of man

The Best That Money Can't Buy Jacque Fresco & Roxanne Meadows, FEW TECHNOLOGICAL ACHIEVEMENTS are as impressive as the ability to see our own planet from outer space The beautiful sphere suspended against the black void of space makes plain the bond that the billions of us on Earth have in common This global consciousness inspires space travellers who then provide emotional and spiritual observations Their views from outer space awaken them to a grand realization that all who share our planet make up a single community They think this viewpoint will help unite the nations of the world in order to build a peaceful future for the present generation and the ones that follow Many poets philosophers and writers have criticized the artificial borders that separate people preoccupied with the notion of nationhood Despite the visions and hopes of astronauts poets writers and visionaries the reality is that nations are continuously at war with one another and poverty and hunger prevail in many places throughout the world including the United States So far no astronaut arriving back on Earth with this new social consciousness has proposed to transcend the world's limitations with a world where no national boundaries exist Each remains loyal to his/her particular nation state and doesn't venture beyond patriotism my country right or wrong because doing so may risk their positions Most problems we face in the world today are of our own making We must accept that the future depends upon us Interventions by mythical or divine characters in white robes descending from the clouds or by visitors from other worlds are illusions that cannot solve the problems of our modern world The future of the world is our responsibility and depends upon decisions we make today We are our own salvation or damnation The shape and solutions of the future depend totally on the collective effort of all people working together
