Figure 10.10 How can we help our students understand the difference between a variable and a constant? We can help them understand that a variable is something that changes, while a constant is something that does not change. We can help them understand that a variable is something that can be measured, while a constant is something that cannot be measured. We can help them understand that a variable is something that can be used to predict the outcome of an experiment, while a constant is something that cannot be used to predict the outcome of an experiment.

It is found that the proposed method is more efficient than the existing methods in terms of the number of iterations and the number of function evaluations. The proposed method is also more robust than the existing methods in terms of the number of successful runs.
