An Ed-Tech Tragedy? Mark West, 2025-10-10 The COVID 19 pandemic pushed education from schools to educational technologies at a pace and scale with no historical precedent For hundreds of millions of students formal learning became fully dependent on technology whether internet connected digital devices televisions or radios An Ed Tech Tragedy examines the numerous adverse and unintended consequences of the shift to ed tech It documents how technology first solutions left a global majority of learners behind and details the many ways education was diminished even when technology was available and worked as intended Using tragedy as a metaphor and borrowing the organization of a three act theatrical play the book shows how technology first modes of learning introduced novel health and safety risks handed significant control of public education to for profit companies expanded invasive digital surveillance and carried detrimental environmental repercussions in addition to adversely impacting educational access equity quality and outcomes in most contexts Dedicated sections consider alternative and less technology reliant educational responses to COVID 19 disruptions that had the potential to be more inclusive and equitable The analysis further explains how pandemic models of learning are rippling beyond school closures and influencing the future of education Holistically the work invites readers to reconsider a turbulent chapter in education history and reexamine the purposes and roles of technology in education

Acid Mine Drainage and its Governance in the Gauteng City-Region Kerry Bobbins, 2015-05-29 Acid mine drainage AMD has generated an enormous amount of media interest and public concern in the Gauteng City Region GCR over the last decade However it has been framed as a narrow technical concern with government action being directed towards securing the necessary engineering and processing solutions as quickly as possible to prevent decant and treat acid mine water to industrial standards This has arguably limited the scope for full discussion and debate on the impacts of AMD particularly for the environment and this bears implications for how AMD has been managed in the GCR Government's immediate short and long term interventions to address AMD have been set out as a straight forward solution but over time more complex environmental concerns have emerged Becoming more evident over the last few years is that one of the main impacts of AMD will be its effect on the overall water security in the Vaal River System VRS on which the GCR relies for its supply of potable water Limits on water abstraction from the VRS together with the increasing need to maintain the overall water quality in the system through dilution and treatment activities means that AMD is beginning to manifest as a binding constraint on economic development and a burden on society in particular via escalating costs for water consumers Fiscal constraints are likely to see GCR residents and businesses pick up more and more of the costs associated with the treatment of AMD through the format of increased municipal tariffs With final decisions on municipal tariffs now pending the broader yet invisible impacts of AMD loom large This means that the debate has moved far beyond the issue of predicted decant in each of the Witwatersrand's mining basins Water security for the GCR and who will carry the costs associated with the long term treatment of AMD have instead taken centre stage This paper carefully updates the historical record on AMD since the publishing of a GCRO Provocation on the issue in 2010 In doing so it argues that the way in which AMD has been governed raises a flag around how the political economy of an issue such as AMD should be understood publicly debated and managed In particular it suggests that the governance of an environmental challenge such as AMD is not only about finding a technical solution The lack of platforms to ensure well informed public deliberation especially over such issues as who will pay and how must be addressed to ensure more equitable and transparent decision making In light of the broader mine waste legacy inherited by the GCR and the strong likelihood of environmental contamination becoming more commonplace in the future these concerns are not only limited to AMD They will only grow in importance over time Department of Defense Appropriations United States.
