Yvonne Spielmann, 2010-08-13 An argument that video is not merely an intermediate stage between analog and digital but a medium in its own right traces the theoretical genealogy of video and examines the different concepts of video seen in works by Vito Acconci Ulrike Rosenbach Steina and Woody Vasulka and others Video is an electronic medium dependent on the transfer of electronic signals Video signals are in constant movement circulating between camera and monitor This process of simultaneous production and reproduction makes video the most reflexive of media distinct from both photography and film in which the image or a sequence of images is central Because it is processual and not bound to recording and the appearance of a frame video shares properties with the computer In this book Yvonne Spielmann argues that video is not merely an intermediate stage between analog and digital but a medium in its own right Video has metamorphosed from technology to medium with a set of aesthetic languages that are specific to it and current critical debates on new media still need to recognize this Spielmann considers video as transformation imagery acknowledging the centrality in video of the transitions between images and the fact that these transitions are explicitly reflected in new processes After situating video in a genealogical model that demonstrates both its continuities and discontinuities with other media Spielmann considers three strands of video praxis documentary experimental art and experimental image making which is concerned primarily with signal processing She then discusses selected works by such artists as Vito Acconci Ulrike Rosenbach Joan Jonas Nam June Paik Peter Campus Dara Birnbaum Nan Hoover Lynn Hershman Gary Hill Steina and Woody Vasulka Bill Seaman and others These works serve to demonstrate the spectrum of possibilities in video as medium and point to connections with other forms of media Finally Spielmann discusses the potential of interactivity complexity and hybridization in the future of video as a medium

Against Immediacy William Kaizen, 2016-07-05 Against Immediacy is a history of early video art considered in relation to television in the United States during the 1960s and 1970s It examines how artists questioned the ways in which the people were ideologically figured by the commercial mass media During this time artists and organizations including Nam June Paik Juan Downey and the Women s Video News Service challenged the existing limits of the one to many model of televisual broadcasting while simultaneously constructing more democratic bottom up models in which the people mediated themselves Operating at the intersection between art history and media studies Against Immediacy connects early video art and the rise of the media screen in gallery based art to discussions about participation and the activation of the spectator in art and electronic media moving from video art as an early form of democratic media practice to its canonization as a form of high art
