BIG BAD WOLF OR MISUNDERSTOOD NEIGHBOUR?

Straw House Disaster ends badly

Yesterday, a shocking series of events unfolded in the quiet countryside when a wolf visited the homes of three little pigs. The wolf, who many call "Big Bad," has insisted he is innocent, but the outcome has left two pigs missing and the wolf under serious suspicion. "I only went to the straw house to borrow a cup of sugar," the wolf said. He explained that he knocked politely on the door, but there was no answer. "Then I sneezed, because of my terrible cold, and the whole house just fell down!" Tragically, the first little pig was caught in the rubble. The wolf admitted, "I was hungry, and it didn't seem right to waste a perfectly good meal."

Stick House Faces the Same Fate

The wolf then visited the second pig, who had built his house out of sticks. "I still needed sugar for my granny's cake," said the wolf. The second pig shouted through the door, refusing to let him in. But, just as at the straw house, the wolf sneezed again. "It's not my fault the house wasn't strong enough," he claimed. When the stick house collapsed, the second pig met the same fate as his brother. The wolf confessed, "I ate him too. It's what wolves do."

The notorious suspect in the Three Little Pigs case

Alexander T. Wolf.

Brick House Holds Strong

Finally, the wolf arrived at the brick house, built by the third pig. This house was much stronger than the others. The wolf knocked and asked for sugar, but the third pig refused to open the door. "I wasn't going to take any chances," said the third pig. The wolf tried huffing and puffing, but the brick house didn't budge. Frustrated, the wolf gave up and left empty-handed. "The wolf was probably scared of me because I was smart enough to build a safe house," said the pig proudly.

Wolf Defends His Actions

The wolf insists the events were not his fault. "I didn't mean to hurt anyone. It was all because of my cold," he said. But the surviving pig believes differently. "He's dangerous, and I'm lucky to be alive," said the third pig. What do you think? Was the wolf truly big and bad, or just unlucky?

population and rising productivity of fertilizer and a tourist site cleansed of burial grounds while also being readily subject to the Party's propaganda. These initiatives were designed both to achieve economic, cultural, and ecological utilities and to forge and popularize a sense of socialist nationhood. The CCP's endeavor to fundamentally transform the West Lake area also opened up possibilities for both human and nonhuman actors to variously benefit from, get along with, and undermine the political authorities planning. This book thus emphatically foregrounds and unifies the agency of both humans and nonhuman entities that are not necessarily tied to intentionality, bringing into question the legitimacy of the human/nonhuman binary. Author Qiliang He explores the agency of both humans and nonhumans, including water microbes, aquatic plants, the park pigs, trees, pests, and tombs, to affect, deflect, and undercut the CCP's sociopolitical programs, thereby diminishing the efficacy of state propaganda. Highlighting the nonpurposive agency of both actors, problematizes the long-held resistance accommodation paradigm which presumes the resisters a priori subjectivities independent of the socialist system in studying the state-society relationship in the People's Republic of China. Using a project-based approach, The People's West Lake gives the nature-human relationship in Mao's China, best known as Mao's war against nature, historical and cultural specificities to reexamine the PRC regime's central planning and the issues related to it.

Ten contributions from leading theorists on contemporary promotional culture presents an indispensable guide to this creative and dynamic field and include detailed historical analysis, in-depth case studies, and global examples of promotion through TV, magazines, newspapers, and cinema.
