

KS2 (Year 6) SATs

A Guide for Parents

Begin

There are two tests for English and spelling (KS2) every year. The first writing test. There is no English

Being the writing test, you will receive a number of written and oral questions. The questions are written. They range from short to long. Some are written in the style of a story.

In the grammar and punctuation test, your understanding of what is punctuation (such as commas, colons) is the writing test. The questions, including a grammar and punctuation section, will be written in a formal style.

The writing test requires children to write a letter, a story or a poem. After each writing test, the teacher will mark it.

What do the SATs Test For? The SATs test your child's understanding of the English language. The SATs will be written.

The purpose of SATs is to assess children's understanding and skills in reading and writing. The tests are given to all children in primary school and are written by the government. The tests are given to all children in primary school and are written by the government.

This guide will answer the most common and important questions about the KS2 SATs.

Why Take SATs?

Children in English schools take SATs in year 2 and in year 6. In year 2, children are tested in maths and English reading and writing, punctuation and grammar. These tests are generally done in a way that is not too stressful for the children. There is no time limit and they are often done in small groups.

In year 6, the SATs become more formal - they are taken in a formal setting with a time limit. Children will complete tests in maths and English.

What do the Tests Cover?

Maths

The KS2 maths test consists of three papers - one arithmetic paper which lasts 30 minutes and two reasoning papers, each lasting 45 minutes. The arithmetic paper will test your child's understanding of number and mental and written calculation skills. Some of the questions will require your child to know a range of number facts (such as times tables facts) and others will test their knowledge of formal written methods of calculation such as short division.

The questions in the reasoning papers challenge your child to apply their mathematical knowledge to solve problems in context, such as purchasing things in a shop, using recipes or calculating area and perimeter for a rug. These test papers cover a much broader range of maths, including geometry and statistics, while still using mental knowledge and arithmetic.
