Drought Stress Tolerance in Plants, Vol 1 Mohammad Anwar Hossain, Shabir Hussain Wani, Soumen Bhattacharjee, David J Burritt, Lam-Son Phan Tran, 2016-05-25 Abiotic stress adversely affects crop production worldwide decreasing average yields for most of the crops to 50% Among various abiotic stresses affecting agricultural production drought stress is considered to be the main source of yield reduction around the globe Due to an increasing world population drought stress will lead to a serious food shortage by 2050 The situation may become worse due to predicated global climate change that may multiply the frequency and duration and severity of such abiotic stresses Hence there is an urgent need to improve our understanding on complex mechanisms of drought stress tolerance and to develop modern varieties that are more resilient to drought stress Identification of the potential novel genes responsible for drought tolerance in crop plants will contribute to understanding the molecular mechanism of crop responses to drought stress The discovery of novel genes the analysis of their expression patterns in response to drought stress and the determination of their potential functions in drought stress adaptation will provide the basis of effective engineering strategies to enhance crop drought stress tolerance Although the in depth water stress tolerance mechanisms is still unclear it can be to some extent explained on the basis of ion homeostasis mediated by stress adaptation effectors toxic radical scavenging osmolyte biosynthesis water transport and long distance signaling response coordination Importantly complete elucidation of the physiological biochemical and molecular mechanisms for drought stress perception transduction and tolerance is still a challenge to the plant biologists The findings presented in volume 1 call attention to the physiological and biochemical modalities of drought stress that influence crop productivity whereas volume 2 summarizes our current understanding on the molecular and genetic mechanisms of drought stress resistance in plants

Epidemiology and Risk Factors For Interstitial Lung Diseases Niranjana Jeganathan, Paolo Spagnolo, Tamara

Corte,2024-03-18 The term interstitial lung diseases ILDs encompasses a broad spectrum of diseases which cause inflammation and or fibrosis of the pulmonary interstitium ILDs are further classified based on clinical and pathophysiological features into idiopathic interstitial pneumonia autoimmune ILDs environmental exposure related ILDs sarcoidosis and other forms of ILDs i e cystic lung diseases and vasculitis ILDs are associated with significant morbidity and mortality and contribute to an increased financial burden due to costly medications inpatient outpatient care and loss of productivity In the last two decades there has been significant progress in the diagnosis and treatment of ILDs However epidemiological data related to ILD remains limited To date most of the epidemiological studies have focused on idiopathic pulmonary fibrosis IPF Since non IPF ILDs are also associated with a progressive fibrosing phenotype and poor outcomes epidemiological studies focusing on all ILDs are needed to further understand the risk factors and disease behavior to reduce the overall disease burden There are many factors that influence the prevalence and prognosis of ILD A combination of environmental and genetic risk factors are likely involved in the development of ILD In addition socioeconomic status access to care and availability of treatments determine timely diagnosis and overall outcomes Epidemiological studies in ILD evaluating the disease burden temporal patterns and demographical and geographical differences can provide further insight into risk factors that are common to all patients with ILD or specific to certain ILD subtypes Identification of these risk factors and population based differences are an important step in implementing preventive measures to reduce disease burden
