Both online and offline we see that people want to make their mark on the world and to make connections. During the previous century the production of culture became dominated by professional elite producers. But today a vast array of people are making and sharing their own ideas, videos, and other creative material online as well as engaging in real-world crafts, art projects, and hands-on experiences. Gauntlett argues that we are seeing a shift from a sit-back-and-be-told culture to a making-and-doing culture. People are rejecting traditional teaching and television and making their own learning and entertainment instead. Drawing on evidence from psychology, politics, philosophy, and economics, he shows how this shift is necessary and essential for the happiness and survival of modern societies. SOFTWARE DEVELOPMENT TEAMS SUDHAKAR, G.
