Economics of the Food Processing Industry Debdata Saha, 2020-03-14 This book presents a wealth of perspectives on studying the manufacturing end of food processing industries with a special focus on regions with a low industrial base and multiple missing markets institutional finance being the most prominent example Positioning food processing within the industrial ecosystem which includes entrepreneurs policymakers business consultants and associations the study first considers three different trajectories for developed economies for national territories like India and for sub national regions like Bihar In turn it shows how these trajectories intertwine in two dimensions the region and the sub sector Successfully completing food processing projects in any of these trajectories requires the identification and development of appropriate product networks that link basic processed items with advanced ones through a chain of value addition Moreover the supply side narrative presented here identifies two types of costs physical and non physical costs of operation For trajectories with skewed firm sizes missing middle and missing markets which can be found in Bihar the latter costs matter just as much as the former in terms of entrepreneurship While efficiency in operations is studied for selected sub sectors in Bihar s food processing to assess the main sources of inefficiency in minimizing the physical costs of operations non physical costs are studied using the construct of region based counterfactual thinking rCFT and its relationship with the perception of risk for entrepreneurs rCFT offers a new concept for understanding the mindset of the entrepreneur in which the regional identity plays a significant role The empirical content is based on a primary survey of food processing in Bihar Additional policy questions such as the choice between spatial collocation of food parks or cluster based development of unique sub sectors are explored through an analysis of the policy network that supports entrepreneurship Issues arising from the government s policy choices particularly vertically targeted industrial policies can influence industrial outcomes and are particularly relevant for regions like Bihar While policy evaluation for Bihar s processed food industry yields insights on policy targeting for decision makers in the government examples of parallel narratives from global experiences in comparable regions shed new light on industrial development in processed food which should be of interest to business practitioners academic researchers and policymakers alike

Fertilizers are indispensable for agricultural production Chemical fertilizers have significantly improved agricultural productivity However the excessive use of fertilizers has caused serious nitrogen pollution What is the reason of a lack of progress in addressing nitrogen pollution What is necessary to achieve sustainable nitrogen use in agriculture This book provides a new perspective from an economic standpoint on these questions Firstly we propose the non market valuation methods to evaluate the social costs of nitrogen Because nitrogen control requires considerable effort and cost evaluating the costs and benefits of nitrogen measures in monetary terms allows for a comparison of the expenses and benefits of nitrogen control despite the delays in implementing such measures in the agricultural sector Secondly we analyze the behavioral changes of producers and consumers regarding nitrogen to indicate the direction of agricultural environmental policies for sustainable nitrogen use in the future To achieve sustainable nitrogen use farmers and consumers need to adopt production and consumption behaviors that consider nitrogen By analyzing the effects of visualizing the nitrogen footprint on the behavioral changes of farmers and consumers this book not only highlights the limitations of conventional agricultural policies but also provides recommendations for future agricultural environmental policies

Applicative and Ecological Aspects of Mycorrhizal Symbioses Mustafa Morsy, Sunil Mundra,2024-11-22

Mycorrhizal symbioses a mutual association between plants and fungi plays a vital role in shaping and balancing the ecosystem of our planet Approximately 80% of vascular plant species form mycorrhizal associations between their roots and soil borne fungi Moreover such association between plants and mycorrhizal fungi drastically affect the water and nutrient absorption by plant roots as well as provides protection against soil borne pathogens Hence mycorrhizal symbioses might be advantageous for plants and our ecosystem under the drastically changing climate which is threatening and distorting our ecosystem Threats to our ecosystem should therefore encourage investigations and inventories of mycorrhizal diversity function and their application Although numerous research has been done in this area some issues remain unsolved because of the dramatic diversity of mycorrhizal associations along with their specificity in response to host plants especially under different climate and soil conditions in different ecosystems Therefore the collection under this research topic aim to provide up to date applicative thorough studies on mycorrhizal symbioses through ecological perspective For this Research Topic we welcome both reviews and original articles that address the following research agenda but not limited to the diversity structure and function of mycorrhizal fungi associated with plants trees crops in different ecosystems the impacts of mycorrhizae on plant species under different environmental condition i e warmer climate drought the interaction between mycorrhizal fungi and plant species in soil with different water level nutrients and salinity the application of the mycorrhizae on regeneration and dynamics of ecosystems as well as their biomass production
