

Guardianship for adults

A guardian is a person appointed by QCAT to help adults with impaired decision-making capacity to make certain personal decisions, such as where to live or with whom they have contact, and health care decisions. This ensures the adult's needs are met and their interests are protected.

Guardians are not allowed to make decisions about:

- financial or property matters unless they have also been appointed as the adult's administrator or as attorney for financial matters under an enduring power of attorney or a general power of attorney - See the QCAT administration for adults fact sheet
- special health care matters including sterilisation or tissue donation
- special personal matters including making or revoking a will or consenting to marriage or relinquishing a child for adoption.

Impaired decision-making capacity explained

There are three elements to making a decision including:

- understanding the nature and effect of the decision,
- freely and voluntarily making a decision, and
- communicating the decision in some way.

If an adult is unable to carry out any part of this process for decision-making, the adult is said to have impaired decision-making capacity.

QCAT decisions about adults

QCAT can decide a range of matters about adults including:

- making a declaration about an adult's decision-making capacity for some or all matters
- that the informal arrangements in place are adequate to protect the adult
- appointing a guardian to make some or all personal and health care decisions
- making a temporary decision to deal with an urgent situation
- making a declaration about the execution and appointment of an enduring power of attorney.

When appointing a guardian may not be necessary

While an adult still has capacity they can appoint someone to make decisions on their behalf by making an enduring power of attorney.

An enduring power of attorney remains in effect until the death of the adult. It does not lapse when the adult loses decision-making capacity. Adults can of course cancel their enduring power of attorney when they still have capacity.
