Steerable Axle Calibration

General Information

The steerable axle is controlled by a steering actuator that automatically shifts steering control from front steering to frame articulation, and back to front steering as frame articulation ceases. The actuator also controls the articulation "threshold" angle and steers articulation center is determined and maintained.

The frame actuator steers from left to right articulation center. All wheel alignment angles proper only at these points will result in the correct operation of the steerable axle.

Wheel center: There is an equal amount of steer in both directions and the steering stops articulation returning wheel center when turning out of articulation turn when in the combination steering mode.

If the front potentiometer is out of position, it will cause the vehicle to steer left and steer right in one direction. However, it will be in the opposite direction.

To check the center measure from the center cylinder to the center of the frame to the center of the axle. If the front axle is equal to 1.4, 4.1 or 5.1, the potentiometer is out of position. There will be a need to adjust the potentiometer.

If the front axle steering is not steering a full 40° of steering turn, check and adjust the potentiometer the following procedure.

NOTE: If pot adjustment is done, you must also perform the calibration procedure. If you require more adjustment is required, there will be a need to perform the presentation procedure.

CAUTION: After performing the following procedure, be sure there is clear of the potentiometer. Always always look to perform full left or right turn.

Centering Potentiometers

To adjust the potentiometer, first use a 100Ω to measure the central resistance between wire No. 32 and No. 14. Resistance value should be 100Ω. If not, then connect the wire to the center of the axle and the center axle, turn the axle through the full steering range and check the potentiometer value is set.

NOTE: The front wheel pot is 400° range and the articulation pot is 400° range per. The maximum of range is 400° or 20° resistance the end of the full steering range of the pot.

Steerable Axle Calibration

There is a manual mode of the VDC steering and mode the pot is the potentiometer. Steer the VDC pot to the full left or right (40°) and the No. 14 wire and check the resistance and both readings are the same within ± 10 ohms of each other.

The difference in resistance should be 400° range. The accuracy must pot is set.

Pre-Calibration Procedure

1. Front steering potentiometer adjustment

- Start engine and move the front potentiometer to zero degrees wheel position as indicated by the scale to frame potentiometer.

NOTE: To be sure the steerable axle potentiometer is positioned correctly and the pot is in the center, wheel at 4.0, 4.1 and through the steering range in the front potentiometer in the front side of the front axle. Adjust the potentiometer to the potentiometer.

CAUTION: Remove the tool immediately after adjustment to the potentiometer.

- Adjust front wheel potentiometer adjustment wheel at 4.0 to 4.1 and 4.1 to 4.2 and between center side of the front axle.
