Solid State Batteries: Materials Design and Optimization Christian Julien, Gholam-Abbas Nazri, 2013-11-27 The field of solid state ionics is multidisciplinary in nature Chemists physicists electrochemists and engineers all are involved in the research and development of materials techniques and theoretical approaches This science is one of the great triumphs of the second part of the 20th century For nearly a century development of materials for solid state ionic technology has been restricted During the last two decades there have been remarkable advances more materials were discovered modern technologies were used for characterization and optimization of ionic conduction in solids trial and error approaches were deserted for defined predictions During the same period fundamental theories for ion conduction in solids appeared The large explosion of solid state ionic material science may be considered to be due to two other influences The first aspect is related to economy and connected with energy production storage and utilization There are basic problems in industrialized countries from the economical environmental political and technological points of view The possibility of storing a large amount of utilizable energy in a comparatively small volume would make a number of non conventional intermittent energy sources of practical convenience and cost The second aspect is related to huge increase in international relationships between researchers and exchanges of results make considerable progress between scientists one find many institutes joined in common search programs such as the material science networks organized by EEC in the European countries

High Temperature Superconductivity Jeffrey W. Lynn, 1990-03-01 One of the most exciting developments in modern physics has been the discovery of the new class of oxide materials with high superconducting transition temperature Systems with T_c well above liquid nitrogen temperature are already a reality and higher T_c s are anticipated Indeed the idea of a room temperature superconductor which just a short time ago was considered science fiction appears to be a distinctly possible outcome of materials research To address the need to train students and scientists for research in this exciting field Jeffrey W Lynn and colleagues at the University of Maryland College Park as well as other superconductivity experts from around the U S taught a graduate level course in the fall of 1987 from which the chapters in this book were drawn Subjects included are

Survey of superconductivity J Lynn The theory of type II superconductivity D Belitz The Josephson effect P Ferrell Crystallography A Santoro Electronic structure C P Wang Magnetic properties and interactions J Lynn Synthesis and diamagnetic properties R Shelton Electron pairing P Allen Superconducting devices F Bedard Superconducting properties J Crow N P Ong

Intracellular Calcium-Dependent Proteolysis Ronald L. Mellgren, Takashi Murachi, 1990-08-29 Intracellular Calcium Dependent Proteolysis explains what is now known about calpains which are intracellular non lysosomal enzymes involved in intracellular protein catabolism The book provides a comprehensive overview of topics ranging from the molecular biology of the calpains and their specific inhibitor protein calpastatin to physiologic and pathologic consequences of the presence of this proteolytic system in many model cells and tissues Several theoretical functions of the calpains are discussed including their potential roles in muscle protein turnover platelet activation membrane fusion and synaptic plasticity Intracellular Calcium Dependent Proteolysis is a valuable source of information for researchers and students interested in the regulation of intracellular protein catabolism and the general effects of Ca^{2+} on cell function

Polymer Gels D. DeRossi, K. Kajiwara, Y. Osada, A. Yamauchi, 2012-12-06 This volume contains a series of papers originally presented at the Symposium on Polymer Gels organized and sponsored by the Research Group on Polymer Gels The Society of Polymer Science of Japan and co sponsored by the Science and Technology Agency ST A and MIT Japan The Symposium took place at Tsukuba Science City on 18th and 19th September 1989 Recognized experts in their fields were invited to speak and there was a strong attendance from government academic and industrial research centers The purpose of the Symposium was to review the state of the art and to present and discuss recent progress in the understanding of the behavioral properties of polymer gels and their application to biomedical environmental and robotic fields Most of the papers and related discussions concentrated on the swelling behavior of hydrogels and chemomechanical systems both artificial and naturally occurring in which external stimuli of a physical or chemical nature control energy transformation or signal transduction The recent great interest in chemomechanical systems based on polymer gels has stimulated considerable effort towards the development of new sensors and actuators controllable membrane separation processes and delivery systems in which the functions of sensing processing and actuation are all built into the polymeric network device Artificial chemomechanical systems through the use of environmentally sensitive polymer gels are emerging as interesting materials for mimicking basic processes previously only confined to the biological world and commercially viable applications are also foreseen in the not too distant future
