

A detailed close-up photograph of the interior mechanical components of a vehicle, specifically the area around the glove box and air vents. The image shows various metal brackets, plastic parts, and wiring. Four white callout boxes with black text and leader lines point to specific components: the wiring harness for the passenger blend door activator, the passenger blend door activator itself, the recirculation door actuator, and the glove box opening mechanism. The components are densely packed and show signs of wear and rust.
