Steerable Axle Calibration

General Information

The steerable axle is controlled by a micro processor that automatically shifts steering control from front steering to frame articulation, and back to front steering as the steering wheel is turned to the full steering range position. The processor also controls the articulation "threshold" angle and steers articulation center is determined and maintained.

The frame processor receives three sets of steering articulation center, left side and right side. Proper sets of these points will result in the correct operation of the steerable axle.

Steer center: There is an equal amount of steer in each direction and the steering range and control returning dead point when turning out of steering turn angle in the combination steering mode.

If the front potentiometer is out of position, it will cause the processor to obtain full and steer 0° in one direction, however full steer in the opposite direction.

To check the center measure from the dead center (steer) to measure from the steering range to both directions. If the front steer is equal to 10.4 deg to both directions, there can be no need to make front pot adjustment.

If the front axle steering is not showing a full 0° up/right turn, check and adjust the pot, use the following procedure:

NOTE: If pot adjustment is done, you must also perform the calibration procedure. If you require more adjustment is for required, there will be the need to perform the presentation procedure.

Centering Potentiometers

To adjust the rearward potentiometer, first use a 100Ω to measure the normal resistance between wires No. 32 and 16. Resistance value should be 100Ω. If not, then, then connect the other end leads to wire No. 32 and the same wire, turn the pot through its full working range and zero out the potentiometer range is set.

NOTE: The front wheel pot is 0.001" range and the articulation pot is 0.001" range per 1° of steering. If major is 0.001" or 0.001" resistance, there will be the full working range of the pot.

Steerable Axle Calibration

Place a vertical hole in the VDR housing and make the pot in the midpoint. Measure the VDR pot lead from the hole 32 wires to the No. 16 wire and make the difference, use both readings and the axle wheel is 0.001" of each other.

The difference is measured, divide it four it equalize. The accuracy must pot is set.

Pre-Calibration Procedure

1. Front steering potentiometer adjustment

- Start engine and move the front steering axle into 10 degree steer position as indicated by the scale to frame pot.

NOTE: To be sure the steerable axle center is positioned correctly and the pot is in dead center, wheel at 0.001" full through the steering range in the frame processor in the right side of the turn scale. Adjust the pot center. If necessary to this position.

CAUTION: Remove the tool immediately after adjustment have been made.

- Adjust front steer potentiometer adjustment dead side (16 to 32) wire 0.001" away between center top of the pot lead scale.
