Conditionally Accepted Eric Joy Denise, Bertin M. Louis, 2024-04-02. A collection of essays that provides advice and strategies for BIPOC scholars on how to survive, thrive, and resist in academic institutions. Conditionally Accepted builds upon an eponymous blog on InsideHigherEd.com which is now a decade-old national platform for BIPOC academics in the United States. Bringing together perspectives from academics of color on navigating intersecting forms of injustice in the academy, each chapter offers situated knowledge about experiencing and resisting marginalization in academia. Contextualized within existing scholarship, these personal narratives speak to institutional betrayals while highlighting agency and sharing stories of surviving on treacherous terrain. Covering topics from professional development to the emptiness of diversity, equity, and inclusion efforts and redefining what it means to be an academic in our contemporary moment, this edited collection directly confronts issues of systemic exclusion, discrimination, harassment, microaggressions, tokenism, and surveillance. Letting marginalized scholars know they are not alone, Conditionally Accepted offers concrete wisdom for readers seeking to navigate and transform oppressive academic institutions. Living a Motivated Life Raymond J. Wlodkowski, 2019-03-14. What if, as psychologists and adult educators advocate, a person chose a life where his motivation for the work itself determined what he did? Living a Motivated Life: A Memoir and Activities follows the author through forty years, revealing how he selected vocational pursuits guided by his understanding of intrinsic motivation and transformative learning. As a compass for relevant decisions, these ideas gave energy and purpose to how he lived and an instinct as sure as sight for the future. Written with nuance, humor, and unpredictability, this story renders how he came to appreciate learning for the pleasure of learning. Facing similar challenges as those of today's first-generation college students, the memoir narrates his unexpected college enrollment, his friendship with an ancient history professor, and his triumphs and travails as teacher, psychologist, human relations specialist, psychotherapist, and adult educator. This is the first memoir of someone who

Dickman, 2008-10-01 This timely book refocuses the debate about school choice programs with a nonpartisan assessment of the nation s largest and longest running private school voucher program the high profile Milwaukee experiment and finds that the system undercuts the promise of school choice The authors argue that the Milwaukee experiment has not resulted in the one element necessary for school choice to be effective an accountability system in which good schools thrive and poor schools close They show that most ingredients of a robust market are missing Well informed consumers parents are not the norm State fiscal incentives are counterproductive and competition among public and choice schools is difficult to discern They conclude that school choice could succeed if certain conditions were met and they offer guidelines to strengthen accountability and repair the voucher system A concurrent validation study of the NCHS general well-being schedule ,1977 Wisconsin Reports Wisconsin.
