Seeing, second edition John P. Frisby,James V. Stone,2010-04-02 An accessible yet rigorous and generously illustrated exploration of the computational approach to the study of biological vision Seeing has puzzled scientists and philosophers for centuries and it continues to do so This new edition of a classic text offers an accessible but rigorous introduction to the computational approach to understanding biological visual systems The authors of Seeing taking as their premise David Marr s statement that to understand vision by studying only neurons is like trying to understand bird flight by studying only feathers make use of Marr s three different levels of analysis in the study of vision the computational level the algorithmic level and the hardware implementation level Each chapter applies this approach to a different topic in vision by examining the problems the visual system encounters in interpreting retinal images and the constraints available to solve these problems the algorithms that can realize the solution and the implementation of these algorithms in neurons Seeing has been thoroughly updated for this edition and expanded to more than three times its original length It is designed to lead the reader through the problems of vision from the common but mistaken idea that seeing consists just of making pictures in the brain to the minutiae of how neurons collectively encode the visual features that underpin seeing Although it assumes no prior knowledge of the field some chapters present advanced material This makes it the only textbook suitable for both undergraduate and graduate students that takes a consistently computational perspective offering a firm conceptual basis for tackling the vast literature on vision It covers a wide range of topics including aftereffects the retina receptive fields object recognition brain maps Bayesian perception motion color and stereopsis MatLab code is available on the book s website which includes a simple demonstration of image convolution

Impossible Minds: My Neurons, My Consciousness (Revised Edition) Igor Aleksander,2014-12-18 Impossible Minds My Neurons My Consciousness has been written to satisfy the curiosity each and every one of us has about our own consciousness It takes the view that the neurons in our heads are the source of consciousness and attempts to explain how this happens Although it talks of neural networks it explains what they are and what they do in such a way that anyone may understand While the topic is partly philosophical the text makes no assumptions of prior knowledge of philosophy and so contains easy excursions into the important ideas of philosophy that may be missing in the education of a computer scientist The approach is pragmatic throughout there are many references to material on experiments that were done in our laboratories The first edition of the book was written to introduce curious readers to the way that the consciousness we all enjoy might depend on the networks of neurons that make up the brain In this second edition it is recognized that these arguments still stand but that they have been taken much further by an increasing number of researchers A post script has now been written for each chapter to inform the reader of these developments and provide an up to date bibliography A new epilogue has been written to summarize the state of the art of the search for consciousness in neural automata for researchers in computation students of philosophy and anyone who is fascinated by what is one of the most engaging scientific endeavours of the day This book also tells a story A story of a land where people think that they are automata without much in the way of consciousness a story of cormorants and cliffs by the sea a story of what it might be like to be a conscious machine
