International Handbook of Research in Medical Education Geoffrey R. Norman, Cees P.M. van der Vleuten, D.I. Newble, 2012-12-06 GEOFF NORMAN McMaster University Hamilton Canada CEES VAN DER VLEUTEN University of Maastricht Netherlands DAVID NEWBLE University of Sheffield England The International Handbook of Research in Medical Education is a review of current research findings and contemporary issues in health sciences education The orientation is toward research evidence as a basis for informing policy and practice in education Although most of the research findings have accrued from the study of medical education the handbook will be useful to teachers and researchers in all health professions and others concerned with professional education The handbook comprises 33 chapters organized into six sections Research Traditions Learning The Educational Continuum Instructional Strategies Assessment and Implementing the Curriculum The research orientation of the handbook will make the book an invaluable resource to researchers and scholars and should help practitioners to identify research to place their educational decisions on a sound empirical footing THE FIELD OF RESEARCH IN MEDICAL EDUCATION The discipline of medical education began in North America more than thirty years ago with the founding of the first office in medical education at Buffalo New York by George Miller in the early 1960s Soon after large offices were established in medical schools in Chicago University of Illinois Los Angeles University of Southern California and Lansing Michigan State University All these first generation offices mounted master's level programs in medical education and many of their graduates went on to found offices at other schools

Practical Guide To Medical Student Assessment Zubair Amin, Yap Seng Chong, Hoon Eng Khoo, 2006-08-23 This practical guide provides a simple useful reference to commonly raised questions about medical student assessment The first part of the book provides succinct information on the general aspects of assessment such as purpose and principles of assessment technical terms such as validity reliability and utility of assessment instruments and how to choose assessment instruments for a given purpose Individual assessment instruments are treated in the second part of the guide The authors focus on about 20 selected assessment instruments currently in use or promising new instruments that are likely to get increased acceptance in future For each instrument a general description is given followed by discussion on its uses limitations psychometric characteristics and recommendations for medical teachers The reference section contains highly selective and well researched resources annotated and classified according to their usefulness Many of these resources are available free on the Internet

Assessing Competence in Professional Performance across Disciplines and Professions Paul F. Wimmers, Marcia Mentkowski, 2016-04-19 This book examines the challenges of cross professional comparisons and proposes new forms of performance assessment to be used in professions education It addresses how complex issues are learned and assessed across and within different disciplines and professions in order to move the process of performance assessment for learning to the next level In order to be better equipped to cope with increasing complexity change and diversity in professional education and performance assessment administrators and educators will engage in crucial systems thinking The main question discussed by the book is how the required competence in the performance of students can be assessed during their professional education at both undergraduate and graduate levels To answer this question the book identifies unresolved issues and clarifies conceptual elements for performance assessment It reviews the development of constructs that cross disciplines and professions such as critical thinking clinical reasoning and problem solving It discusses what it means to instruct and assess students within their own domain of study and across various roles in multiple contexts but also what it means to instruct and assess students across domains of study in order to judge integration and transfer of learning outcomes Finally the book examines what it takes for administrators and educators to develop competence in assessment such as reliably judging student work in relation to criteria from multiple sources the co editors of this volume Marcia Mentkowski and Paul F Wimmers are associated with two institutions whose characters are so intimately associated with the insight that assessment must be integrated with curriculum and instructional program if it is to become a powerful influence on the educational process Lee Shulman Stanford University

The Neuropsychology of Women Elaine Fletcher-Janzen, 2008-12-19 The Diversity in Clinical Neuropsychology series is designed to highlight cultural and moderator variables involved in the study of brain behavior relationships Historically the study of psychology and neuropsychology has focused on the male brain being the standard to which all or most variables are considered The study of sex differences is perhaps the most provoking and far reaching aspect of diversity because frequently women have unique assessment and treatment needs For example frontal lobe functioning tends to be more contextual for women than for men These brain functions have behavioral counterparts that directly relate to how interventions may be tailor made to suit the female rather than male patient The goal in neuropsychology is always to improve diagnosis and treatment outcomes and a cohesive summary of the neuropsychology of the female brain would raise awareness and cultural competency of clinicians in neuropsychology Authors will focus on sex differences in the neuropsychological cognitive and development literature ethnic and socioeconomic variables affecting diagnosis and treatment of women and social emotional and behavioral manifestations of neuropsychological sex differences Assessing Clinical Competence Vic Neufeld, Geoffrey R.
