Public feedback on our all-grade-youngest-different-age-children research has resulted in numerous media reports. I properly disclosed that our all-grade-youngest-different-age-children research was funded by the United States Federal Government. In the disclosure we did not disclose that we received the US Government's funding where we are conducting the research.

NOTE: The important point to note here is that the three variables that are path-estimated are specific to each set. In other words, directly you simultaneously estimate relationships between the observed genetic liability, g_{obs} , and a different directly measured genetic liability. For the purpose of analyzing the data, we are going to use the variables "white" and "black". Our primary approach is to fit separate g-lis to estimate a multiple indicator of genetic liability and then use these indicators as covariates in a separate model of analyzing the data for two indicators that the previous model has indicated the indicator value for. The variable called g_{obs} is the indicator that measures the measurement of the g latent from the set of age-specific indicators. The variable g_{obs} represents the observed phenotype using indicator g_{obs} (0 for 0-year's of age, 1 for 1-year's of age, etc.). The variable g_{obs} is the age-specific liability for each age group (0-1). Our primary approach to the problem is to fit three separate models of the three latent variables g_{obs} and g_{obs} in the different models of the data.
