Abstract
 Patients with severe mental illness (SMI) are at an elevated risk of suicide. The purpose of this study was to examine the impact of a brief, structured, and standardized suicide risk assessment (SRA) on the management of patients with SMI. The study was conducted in a large, urban, academic medical center. The SRA was a 10-minute, structured, and standardized assessment of suicide risk. The SRA was administered by a trained clinician. The SRA was used to identify patients at risk of suicide. The SRA was used to guide the management of patients at risk of suicide. The SRA was used to guide the management of patients at risk of suicide. The SRA was used to guide the management of patients at risk of suicide.

- Before you start the setup procedure, disconnect the all power cord of your system, monitor and keyboard. You will need to use a screwdriver to open the back of the monitor. See the back of the monitor for the location of the screws.
