

KEYWORDS: (14) Solving Linear Systems of Equations quickly and accurately...3

Comment: I came across this matching activity at a regional NCTM conference in 2002. I have no idea who the teacher who presented at the session was nor even if she wrote it in the first place. But I have been using this activity with my Algebra I students every year ever since.

Directions for the teacher: Photocopy the three card pages on color paper, cut up the cards, and put them in zip-lock bags. (If you can, laminate them before you cut them up and they will last longer.) Make enough sets... $\frac{\text{total number of students}}{2} + 1$. Photocopy the answer sheet on white paper, enough for $\frac{\text{total number of students}}{2} + \text{a few}$. Do the activity yourself, then decide how you want your student pairs organized. Usually I pull names from a hat for cooperative pairs, but sometimes I plan the pairs... it depends on the kids and the class. With my high school students I allow calculator use, but with my middle school students I do not. I definitely have my students use rulers, graph paper, and notebook paper for scratchwork. With my high school students I allow calculator use, but with my middle school students I do not.

Directions for the students: Each packet contains 34 cards. There are 8 story cards, 8 equation cards, and 18 answer cards. Your job is to match the cards so that the story goes with the proper equations and the correct solution (ordered pair). As a homework, please complete this sheet. Attach additional work (graphs, algebra, etc.) you did in order to make your matches.
