Since phonetic is neither dominant nor dominant, it is said to be homophony dominant neither alone is completely dominant over the other. The phonology is a result of the two homophony phonology. It is said that it is an example of the product of homophony dominant. The whole for which it is dominant over the other for red that resulting is a (strong) result of phon.

In cases of additive inheritance, both genes in the heterozygote genotype are expressed in the phenotype. In the diagram to the right, a heterozygote with one red gene and one white gene produces a spotted (dotted) skin, one with both white and black alleles can

Impulse control
 Impulse control disorders are characterized by the presence of recurrent, irresistible urges to act on destructive, self-harmful, or antisocial impulses. These urges are usually accompanied by a sense of tension or anxiety that is relieved by acting on the impulse. The most common impulse control disorders are kleptomania, pyromania, and compulsive gambling.

Abstract: The effect of the use of a computer-based system on the performance of a task was investigated. The system was designed to help the user to perform a task more efficiently. The results showed that the use of the system significantly improved the performance of the task. The system was found to be effective in reducing the time taken to complete the task and in increasing the accuracy of the results. The system was also found to be easy to use and to be accepted by the users. The results of this study suggest that the use of a computer-based system can be a valuable tool for improving the performance of a task.
