Tracings that are properly handled and stored will last indefinitely The term blueprint is used loosely to describe copies of original drawings or tracings One of the first processes developed to duplicate tracings produced white lines on a blue background hence the term blueprint Today however other methods produce prints of different colors The colors may be brown black gray or maroon The differences are in the types of paper and developing processes used A patented paper identified as BW paper produces prints with black lines on a white background The diazo or ammonia process produces prints with either black blue or maroon lines on a white background Another type of duplicating process rarely used to reproduce working drawings is the photostatic process in which a large camera reduces or enlarges a tracing or drawing The photostat has white lines on a dark background Businesses use this process to incorporate reduced size drawings into reports or records The standards and procedures prescribed for military drawings and blueprints are stated in military standards MIL STD and American National Standards Institute ANSI standards The Department of Defense Index of Specifications and Standards lists these standards it is issued on 31 July of each year The following list contains common MIL STD and ANSI standards listed by number and title that concern engineering drawings and blueprints Index of Specifications and Standards ,2001
