How Russia Is Not Ruled Allen C. Lynch, 2005-01-10 The state remains as important to Russia's prospects as ever This is so not only because as in any society an effectively functioning state administration is necessary to the proper functioning of a complex economy and legal system but also because in Russian circumstances factors of economic geography tend to increase costs of production compared to the rest of the world These mutually reinforcing factors include the extreme severity of the climate the immense distances to be covered the dislocation between European population centers and Siberian natural resource centers and the inevitable predominance of relatively costly land transportation over sea borne transportation As a result it is questionable whether Russia can exist as a world civilization under predominantly liberal economic circumstances in a unified liberal global capital market large scale private direct capital investment will not be directed to massive outdoor infrastructure projects typical of state investment in the Soviet period
