Angles of Elevation and Depression

Angles of Elevation and Depression These two angles describe the position of an object by measuring angles between horizontal paths and vertical segments, which is the angle between an observer's line of sight and a horizontal reference.

As the observer's height increases, the angle of depression decreases until the observer is directly above the object being measured.

Example: The angle of elevation from the base of a 1000-ft tower to the top of a 100-ft antenna is 30° . How high is the antenna?

Step 1: Draw the triangle.

The height of the antenna is 100 ft.
