

THE SKELETON
The skeleton is the framework of the body, supporting the soft tissues and organs. It is composed of bones and cartilage. The bones are made of a hard, white, mineralized tissue called bone. The cartilage is a soft, white, fibrous tissue that connects the bones. The skeleton is divided into the axial skeleton (skull, spine, and rib cage) and the appendicular skeleton (arms and legs).

THE MUSCLES
The muscles are the soft tissue that contracts to move the bones. They are made of muscle fibers that are connected by a network of nerves. The muscles are divided into the skeletal muscles (attached to bones) and the smooth muscles (found in the walls of internal organs).

THE JOINTS
The joints are the points where two or more bones meet. They allow the bones to move relative to each other. There are three main types of joints: fibrous joints, cartilaginous joints, and synovial joints.

THE NERVOUS SYSTEM
The nervous system is the body's communication system. It consists of the brain, spinal cord, and nerves. The brain is the control center, and the nerves carry messages between the brain and the rest of the body. The nervous system is divided into the central nervous system (brain and spinal cord) and the peripheral nervous system (nerves).

THE CIRCULATORY SYSTEM
The circulatory system is the body's transport system. It consists of the heart, blood vessels, and blood. The heart pumps blood through the blood vessels to the rest of the body. The blood carries oxygen and nutrients to the cells and removes waste products. The circulatory system is divided into the systemic circulation (to the rest of the body) and the pulmonary circulation (to the lungs).

THE ENDOCRINE SYSTEM
The endocrine system is the body's hormone system. It consists of the endocrine glands, which secrete hormones into the bloodstream. The hormones travel through the blood to the target organs, where they regulate various functions. The endocrine system is divided into the anterior pituitary gland, the posterior pituitary gland, and the thyroid gland.

THE IMMUNE SYSTEM
The immune system is the body's defense system. It consists of the white blood cells, which fight off infections and diseases. The immune system is divided into the innate immune system (first line of defense) and the adaptive immune system (second line of defense).

THE DIGESTIVE SYSTEM
The digestive system is the body's food processing system. It consists of the mouth, esophagus, stomach, and intestines. The food is broken down into small particles, which are then absorbed into the bloodstream. The digestive system is divided into the upper digestive tract (mouth, esophagus, and stomach) and the lower digestive tract (intestines).
