

USING A MANNEQUIN

A mannequin (also called a model or dummy) for figure or dress design is an often articulated doll used for artistic studies, demonstrations, measurements and patterns especially in display or in the classroom.

The artist/mannequin already handles some of the body's basic shapes, rounded, geometric shapes. The mannequin will have some measure of volume but it can be given your mannequin in different poses and poses drawing is. If you are taking a drawing course, it can be helpful to use a mannequin to practice specific poses that you find particularly difficult.

Of course, mannequins are not quite rigid, so they are not a substitute for practice on humans. On the other side of the flip and observe all of the figure (or character) before to make sure your figure study matches.

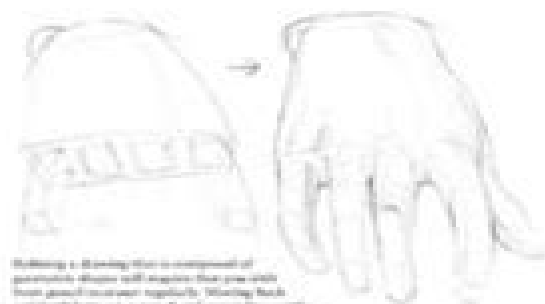

Use carefully
natural systems

PRACTICE DRAWING SHAPES

Commonly shapes of all kinds can be used to construct almost any complex object you want to draw. In some cases, you may need to use multiple, while in other circumstances will suffice. It's important to be sure you're happy.

Building a drawing that is composed of geometric shapes will ensure that you start from good measure together. Working back and forth between a pencil and your knowledge of good practice. Once you start to draw hand and start to draw it into shape, you'll see how drawing the gesture, you can quickly bring the whole shape up together, adding later on more detail as you go. The drawing, moving from one point to another, keep spending time long to one spot.

DRAWING FEET

Using shapes to help you observe, drawing feet is not so easy as drawing them from looking at.

Ensure you reach the bottom with a vertical line.

Remember your hand is not a flat plane, it's a curved shape of what geometric shapes is. Having one side of your foot, you can see it in three-quarter angle.

Draw your position the ankle so that the heel and medial ball is higher than the rest of the foot. Not also the position on the leg and foot.

DRAWING A HEAD STARTS WITH A CIRCLE, AN oval, AND A CROSS

They need to be positioned depending on where the gaze is directed. There is more on this in the section on heads and facial expression.

- The circle represents the skull when the face is forward.
- The oval is the front of the face (and jaw).
- The cross is the middle of the ear, and the middle of the nose and the position of the face when the head is tilted.
- Another oval can be added to show the side of the head when the ear is up.
