Africa, Transport and the Millennium Development Goals

Raj Bardouille, Deborah Bryceson, Muna Ndalo, 2009-10-02 Transport is an essential service that must contribute to national development objectives in health education agriculture and other sectors in guiding sub Saharan Africa out of poverty Developing policies aimed at providing safe reliable and affordable transport infrastructure and services can and will make a substantial and sustainable contribution to eradicating extreme poverty and hunger achieving universal primary education improving health care and reducing HIV AIDS Although transport is identified as a priority in poverty reduction strategies it has not generally been adequately addressed Global responses tend to focus on rural transport infrastructure principally roads with little attention given to sub sectors such as rivers lakes and railroads and important geographical and econological differences are ignored The needs of the urban poor have been weakly addressed as have the access and mobility needs of women the disabled and other disadvantaged groups while strategies for adapting transport to agricultural production distribution or social services e g health and education have not been adequately developed A systematic approach to the development of sound comprehensive transport sector programs that provide clear guidance on what is to be done is much needed This volume the product of an expert workshop held at Cornell University s Institute for African

Development in May 2007 provides accounts of an array of African operational spaces in which transport is relevant to the Millennium Development Goals It addresses many heretofore ignored dimensions of transport mobility issues of the urban poor of women and children and issues of access to employment education and health services It provides an alignment of transport with the MDGs in what proves to be fertile ground for research with important messages for policy makers and consequences for policy Radiodignosis For Medical Students Ebook-PDF Chandresh Agrawal,nandini books,2024-05-11
