Anatomy and Physiology explores the essentials of human structure and function through engaging, generously illustrated, full color activities. Each body system is explored in detail. Homeostasis provides a unifying theme connecting the body systems and highlighting their interrelatedness. Students are encouraged to explore each body system within the contexts of four themes: disease, medicine and technology, aging, and exercise. The result is a rounded exploration of human anatomy and physiology.

BIOZONE's unique, interactive worktext approach encourages direct interaction with the content, allowing students to record their answers within the context of the stimulus material and form a record of work for quick and easy revision.

108 Structure of the Mammalian Heart

Key ideas: Mammals have a four-chambered heart, divided into left and right halves, and acting as a double pump. The heart is the centre of the human circulatory system. It is a hollow, muscular organ made up of four chambers (two atria and two ventricles) that alternately fill and empty of blood, acting as a double pump. The left side pumps the oxygenated blood to the rest of the body, and the right side pumps deoxygenated blood to the lungs. The heart has a double-layered pericardium of connective tissue, which prevents over-distension of the heart and anchors it within the mediastinal compartment of the thoracic cavity.

Human heart structure (simplified, anterior view)

Arrows indicate integrated blood in the heart and body.

Heart is divided into four chambers: the right and left atria and ventricles. The right atrium receives deoxygenated blood from the body, and the right ventricle pumps it to the lungs. The left atrium receives oxygenated blood from the lungs, and the left ventricle pumps it to the body.

The heart is not a spherical organ. Although the quantity of blood pumped by each side is the same, the walls of the two ventricles are shaped so that the left ventricle has a thicker wall and is more circular in cross-section, so that it can pump blood to the rest of the body.

Right atrium: receives deoxygenated blood in the anterior and posterior venae cavae.
Right ventricle: pumps deoxygenated blood to the lungs via the pulmonary artery.
Left atrium: receives oxygenated blood returning to the heart from the lungs via the pulmonary veins.
Left ventricle: pumps oxygenated blood to the body and lungs via the aorta.
