University Statistics Courses Andreas Maur, 2023-05-18 Digital tools and pedagogies in public higher education are unfolding their potential by providing large groups of students with automated continuous learning and feedback opportunities. However, most of the existing studies are cross-sectional, unidirectional, and focus on a limited selection of relevant target variables and instructional features. In a field study, Andreas Maur used longitudinal latent structural equation modelling with a large sample of students to analyse the interrelations between formative feedback from electronic quizzes and different facets of the control value theory of achievement emotions. The results suggest that regular quizzes most consistently improve self-efficacy, anxiety, effort, course enjoyment, and hopelessness over time. Only feedback effects related to intrinsic motivation were consistently less effective for female and less proficient students and for students in traditional versus flipped classrooms. These findings highlight the need to scale up formative feedback in higher education and to cultivate feedback systems with higher levels of sophistication, adaptability, and gamification mechanics. Big Data-Enabled

Nursing Connie W. Delaney, Charlotte A. Weaver, Judith J. Warren, Thomas R. Clancy, Roy L. Simpson, 2017-11-02 Historically, nursing in all of its missions of research, scholarship, education, and practice has not had access to large patient databases. Nursing consequently adopted qualitative methodologies with small sample sizes, clinical trials, and lab research. Historically, large data methods were limited to traditional biostatistical analyses. In the United States, large payer data has been amassed, and structures, organizations have been created to welcome scientists to explore these large data to advance knowledge discovery. Health systems' electronic health records (EHRs) have now matured to generate massive databases with longitudinal trending. This text reflects how the learning health system infrastructure is maturing and being advanced by health information exchanges (HIEs) with multiple organizations blending their data or enabling distributed computing. It educates the readers on the evolution of knowledge discovery methods that span qualitative as well as quantitative data mining, including the expanse of data visualization capacities enabling sophisticated discovery. New opportunities for nursing and call for new skills in research methodologies are being further enabled by new partnerships spanning all sectors.

Biomedical Visualisation Paul M. Rea, 2019-07-23 This edited book explores the use of technology to enable us to visualise the life sciences in a more meaningful and engaging way. It will enable those interested in visualisation techniques to gain a better understanding of the applications that can be used in visualisation, imaging, and analysis, education, engagement, and training. The reader will be able to explore the utilisation of technologies from a number of fields to enable an engaging and meaningful visual representation of the biomedical sciences, with a focus in this volume related to anatomy and clinically applied scenarios. The first six chapters have an anatomical focus, examining digital technologies and applications to enhance education. The first examines the history and development of ultrasound applications in an educational setting and as a point of care ultrasound at the bedside. The second chapter presents a transferable workflow methodology in creating an interactive educational and training package to enhance understanding of the circadian rhythm.

The third chapter reviews tools and technologies which can be used to enhance off campus learning and the current range of visualisation technologies like virtual augmented and mixed reality systems Chapter four discusses how scanning methodologies like CT imagery can make stereoscopic models The fifth chapter describes a novel way to reconstruct 3D anatomy from imaging datasets and how to build statistical 3D shape models described in a clinical context and applied to diagnostic disease scoring The sixth chapter looks at interactive visualisations of atlases in the creation of a virtual resource for providing next generation interfaces The seventh and eight chapters discuss neurofeedback for mental health education and interactive visual data analysis applied to irritable bowel disease respectively The final two chapters examine current immersive technologies virtual and augmented reality with the last chapter detailing virtual reality in patients with dementia This book is accessible to a wide range of users from faculty and students developers and computing experts the wider public audience It is hoped this will aid understanding of the variety of technologies which can be used to enhance understanding of clinical conditions using modern day methodologies
