Diaspora and Multiculturalism Monika Fludernik, 2003 In postcolonial theory we have now reached a new stage in the succession of key concepts After the celebrations of hybridity in the work of Homi Bhabha and Gayatri Spivak it is now the concept of diaspora that has sparked animated debates among postcolonial critics This collection intervenes in the current discussion about the new diaspora by placing the rise of diaspora within the politics of multiculturalism and its supersession by a politics of difference and cultural rights theory The essays present recent developments in Jewish negotiations of diasporic tradition and experience discussing the reinterpretation of concepts of the old diaspora in late twentieth century British and American Jewish literature The second part of the volume comprises theoretical and critical essays on the South Asian diaspora and on multicultural settings between Australia Africa the Caribbean and North America The South Asian and Caribbean diasporas are compared to the Jewish prototype and contrasted with the Turkish diaspora in Germany All essays deal with literary reflections on and thematisations of the diasporic predicament

Black British Literature Mark Stein, 2004 In this fascinating book Mark Stein examines black British literature centering on a body of work created by British based writers with African South Asian or Caribbean cultural backgrounds Linking black British literature to the bildungsroman genre this study examines the transformative potential inscribed in and induced by a heterogeneous body of texts Capitalizing on their plural cultural attachments these texts portray and purvey the transformation of post imperial Britain Stein locates his wide ranging analysis in both a historical and a literary context He argues that a cross cultural and interdisciplinary approach is essential to understanding post colonial culture and society The book relates black British literature to ongoing debates about cultural diversity and thereby offers a way of reading a highly popular but as yet relatively uncharted field of cultural production With the collapse of its empire with large scale immigration from former colonies and with ever increasing cultural diversity Britain underwent a fundamental makeover in the second half of the twentieth century This volume cogently argues that black British literature is not only a commentator on and a reflector of this makeover but that it is simultaneously an agent that is integral to the processes of cultural and social change Conceptualizing the novel of transformation this comprehensive study of British black literature provides a compelling analytic framework for charting these processes

The Cambridge Introduction to Modern British Fiction, 1950-2000 Dominic Head, 2002-03-07 In this introduction to post war fiction in Britain Dominic Head shows how the novel yields a special insight into the important areas of social and cultural history in the second half of the twentieth century Head's study is the most exhaustive survey of post war British fiction available. It includes chapters on the state and the novel, class and social change, gender and sexual identity, national identity and multiculturalism. Throughout Head places novels in their social and historical context. He highlights the emergence and prominence of particular genres and links these developments to the wider cultural context. He also provides provocative readings of important individual novelists, particularly those who remain staple reference points in the study of the subject. Accessible, wide ranging and designed specifically for use on courses, this is the most current introduction to the subject available. An invaluable resource for students and teachers alike.

Translation of Cultures Petra Wittke-Rüdiger, Konrad Gross, 2009. The contributors to this collection approach the subject of the translation of cultures from various angles. Translation refers to the rendering of texts from one language into another and the shift between languages under precolonial retelling, transcreation, colonial domestication and postcolonial multilingual trafficking conditions.

Growing up with Two Cultures. A Psychoanalytical Reading of "Anita and Me" by Meera Syal, 2023-03-02. Seminar paper from the year 2017 in the subject English Language and Literature Studies, Literature grade 1.3, University of Paderborn, Anglistik, Amerikanistik course. Meera Syal, language English, abstract. My term paper is aimed at finding out how Meena's identity changes throughout the book and how growing up with two cultures affects this process. The analysis is divided into four parts. The first step will be to explain Freud's fundamental theory, including his significant technical terms. After that, I will explain how the English and Indian culture are presented in the novel. Then I will transfer Freud's hypotheses to Meena's behaviour by finding appropriate examples in the novel. In the end, I will complete my work by summing up my findings as well as reflecting them.

Unreliable Truths Sissy Helff, 2013. While many people see home as the domestic sphere and place of belonging, it is hard to grasp its manifold implications and even harder to provide a tidy definition of what it is. Over the past century, discussion of home and nation has been a highly complex matter with broad political ramifications, including the realignment of nation states and national boundaries. Against this backdrop, this book suggests that home is constructed on the assumption that what it defines is constantly in flux and thus can never capture an objective perspective or an ultimate truth. Along these lines, Unreliable Truths offers a comparative literary approach to the construction of home and concomitant notions of uncertainty and unreliable narration in South Asian diasporic women's literature from the UK, Australia, South Africa, the Caribbean, North America and Canada. Writers discussed in detail include Feroza Jussawalla, Suneeta Peres, da Costa, Meera Syal, Farida Karodia, Shani Mootoo, Shobha D and Oonya Kempadoo. With its focus on transcultural homes,

Unreliable Truths goes beyond discussions of diaspora from an established postcolonial point of view and contributes with its investigation of transcultural unreliable narration to the representation of a g local South Asian diaspora Cities on the Margin, on the Margin of Cities Philippe Laplace, Eric Tabuteau, 2003 Bloomsbury Teacher Guide: Anita and Me Kerry Kurczij, Zara Shah, 2024-06-20 Bloomsbury Teacher Guide Anita and Me weaves together the essential subject knowledge ready to use resources and classroom strategies needed to teach Meera Syal s extraordinary story as well as fresh ideas to teach this GCSE set text that are as exciting for you as they are for your students Each chapter contains suggested schemes of work and lesson ideas to enhance subject knowledge on key areas of the text with focus on historical and cultural context understanding the plot character analysis key themes and detailed analysis of language form and structure appropriate for all GCSE exam boards and for pre teaching at KS3 level Effective and engaging strategies are included for relevant lessons and exam preparation from retrieval practice to scaffolding and reciprocal reading The book includes exclusive downloadable and printable teaching resources for instant use in the classroom to support students at all levels Whether you are new to teaching or looking for varied ideas to try out in the classroom this Bloomsbury Teacher Guide will be your expert companion to the study of the Anita and Me Poetic Justice Ian Cosgrove, 2009-07-30 A collection of tales from Stewart and Anita Stenhouse Love has never been stronger than theirs Anita and Me Anita and Me, 2002 specializing in bureaucratic organizations and gender studies was hired to monitor the project. Analyzing her own experience as a practicing development expert, she demonstrates that the professed goal of women's empowerment is a pretext for promoting economic organizational goals and the interests of local elites. She shows how a project intended to benefit women through teaching them literary and agricultural skills fails to provide them with any of the promised resources. Going beyond the conventional analysis that positions aid givers vis-à-vis powerless victimized recipients, she draws attention to the complexity of the process and the active role played by the Nepalese rural women who pursue their own interests and aspirations within this unequal world. The book makes an important contribution to the growing critique of development projects and of women's development projects in particular.

Performing Identities and Utopias of Belonging Teresa Botelho, Iolanda Ramos, 2014-07-08

Performing Identities and Utopias of Belonging consists of sixteen essays reflecting the current conflicted debate on the ontology, constructiveness, and affect of categories of ascribed social identity such as gender, ethnicity, race, and nation in the context of British, Irish, and North American cultural landscapes. They address the many ways in which these communities of belonging are imagined, iterated, performed, questioned, and deconstructed in literature, cinema, and visual culture; they also support or counter claims about the enhanced value of social identity in the expression of the self in the light of the present debates that surround the contested post-identity turn in cultural studies. Significantly, they also address the role of social identity in the field of utopian and dystopian thought, focusing on the projection of imagined futures where alternative means of conceiving ascribed identity are conceptualized. The contributions are shaped by a plurality of approaches and theoretical discourses and come from both established and emerging scholars and researchers from Europe and beyond. The collection is structured in three sections: the politics of unbelonging, deconstructing utopian and cultural paradigms, and performing identities in the visual arts, which organize the multidisciplinary discussions around specific nuclei of interrogations.
