

2 Scope and methodology

The scope of the study and the methodology used are broadly consistent with previous reports. This section recaps the definition used for the arts and culture industry, and the scope of the study.

2.1 Scope of the study

This report continues to use a definition of the arts and culture industry that is linked to industry classification and national statistics. The Standard Industrial Classification (SIC) system provides the underlying data collection framework for much of the economic data produced by the ONS. This includes the UK business economy and national accounting frameworks, which are the foundation on which the macro-economic models developed by Cebr.

In defining the arts and culture industry under this framework, the objective is to capture the value to the economy of six disciplines that are funded by Arts Council England - theatre, dance, literature, visual arts, music and combined arts. On a SIC basis, arts and culture consists of sets and/or subsets, dependent on the level of aggregation, of the product and sector groups defined under the SIC system.

The definition used in this and Cebr's previous reports includes the following set of activities, identified by 3-4-digit SIC codes:

- 58.11 - book publishing (1-digit Section J)
- 59.2 - sound recording and music publishing (1-digit Section J)
- R90.01 - performing arts (1-digit Section R)
- R90.02 - support activities to performing arts (1-digit Section R)
- R90.03 - artistic creation (1-digit Section R)
- R90.04 - operation of arts facilities including the operation of concert and theatre halls (1-digit Section R)

A more detailed SIC-based definition of the arts and culture industry used in this study (incl. a breakdown of the activities listed above), is provided in Appendix J. As with previous reports, the creative industries, museums and libraries remain outside the scope of the economic assessment presented herein. Cebr is preparing a separate study analysing the economic impacts of the museum sector, although a small number of museums took part in the 'spillover' survey of arts and culture organisations within this study.
