2014 Trial Life Orientation Examination Paper:

Research Anthology on Diagnosing and Treating Neurocognitive Disorders Management Association, Information Resources, 2020-08-30 Cognitive impairment through Alzheimer's disease or other related forms of dementia is a serious concern for afflicted individuals and their caregivers. Understanding patients' mental states and combatting social stigmas are important considerations in caring for cognitively impaired individuals. Technology is playing an increasing role in the lives of the elderly. One of the most prevalent developments for the aging population is the use of technological innovations for intervention and treatment of individuals with mental impairments. Research Anthology on Diagnosing and Treating Neurocognitive Disorders examines the treatment, diagnosis, prevention, and therapeutic and technological interventions of neurodegenerative disorders. It also describes programs and strategies that professional and family caregivers can implement to engage and improve the quality of life of persons suffering from cognitive impairment. Highlighting a range of topics such as dementia, subjective wellbeing, and cognitive decline, this publication is an ideal reference source for speech pathologists, social workers, occupational therapists, psychologists, psychiatrists, neurologists, pediatricians, researchers, clinicians, and academicians seeking coverage on neurocognitive disorder identification and strategies for clinician support and therapies.

A Compendium of Neuropsychological Tests Elisabeth M. S. Sherman, Jing Ee Tan, Marianne Hrabok, 2023-05-09 A Compendium of Neuropsychological Tests Fourth Edition is one of the most well-established reference texts in neuropsychology. This newly revised, updated, and expanded fourth edition provides a comprehensive overview of essential aspects of neuropsychological practice along with 100 test reviews of well-known neuropsychological tests for adults. The aim of the Compendium is to provide a comprehensive yet practical overview of the state of the field while also summarizing the evidence on the theoretical background, norms, reliability, and validity of commonly used neuropsychological tests. Based on extensive review of the clinical and research literature in neuropsychology, neurology, and related disciplines, its comprehensive critical reviews of common neuropsychological tests and standardized scales include tests for premorbid estimation, dementia screening, IQ, attention, executive functioning, memory, language, visuospatial skills, sensory function, motor skills, performance validity, and symptom validity. Tables within each test review summarize important features of each test, highlight aspects of each normative dataset, and provide an overview of psychometric properties. This essential reference text also covers basic and advanced aspects of neuropsychological assessment with chapters on psychometric concepts and principles, reliability in neuropsychology, theoretical models of test validity, and an overview of critical concepts pertaining to performance and symptom validity testing and malingering. Of interest to neuropsychologists, clinical psychologists, educational psychologists, neurologists, and psychiatrists, as well as trainees in these areas, this volume will aid practitioners in gaining a deeper understanding of fundamental assessment concepts in neuropsychology while also serving as an essential guidebook for selecting the right test for specific clinical situations and for helping clinicians make empirically supported test

Experiments Nenad Miscevic, 2021-09-29 This book offers a readable introduction to the main aspects of thought experimenting in philosophy and science together with related imaginative activities in mathematics and linguistics It presents the main options in understanding thought experiments from empiricism to Platonism and discusses their strengths and weaknesses However it also provides some original perspectives on the topic Firstly it provides a new definition and analysis of thought experimenting that brings it closer to laboratory experimenting Secondly it develops the author's earlier theory of mental modelling proposed some decades ago by him and some other researchers in the field as the crucial procedure in thought experimenting The mental modelling approach links work with thought experimenting to cognitive science and to research on mental simulation which is a hot topic in present day research Thirdly it proposes a principled way to respond to criticism of thought experimenting by experimental philosophers as they have been dominating the present day debates The response suggests a possible ameliorative self help project for thought experimenting Finally the book provides a way to systematize the history of important thought experiments in science and philosophy and thus connects in an original way the systematic investigation of experimenting to the historical work of famous thought experiments It is of interest to scholars interested in history of ideas and philosophy of science Hauntological Social Studies Bretton A.

Varga, 2025-12-02 This edited volume operationalizes the figure of the ghost and subsequent hauntings through Derrida's framing of hauntology in an effort to attend to the liminal spaces that exist between presence and absence throughout social studies contexts and beyond Traditionally social studies education and its tenets of economics civics geography government and history have been concerned with how bodies become re produced re located destroyed and remembered across vectors of time However as this work argues the maintenance of strict demarcations of time becomes problematic by closing opportunities for students to engage with the complex ways that material bodies shift within temporal encounters As such this book is primarily concerned with pursuing and positioning such haunted encounters as generative lines of inquiry that grant us e g educators students researchers the ability to think differently about history the present and the future In a distinct move toward a pastpresentfuture this volume challenges the boundaries of social studies teaching learning and research by interrupting majoritarian temporal material positionings that stymie how social and ecological justice is narrativized understood and perhaps most significantly attained in the future A Material Culture Ethnography of Home-Making in Asylum Reception Friedemann Yi-Neumann, 2025-05-10 This book explores what it takes to create a sense of home while in exile drawing on ethnographic research conducted in German asylum reception facilities from 2016 2020 From a material culture perspective it examines how asylum seekers and migrants with precarious legal status translate aspects of home into challenging environments Through these translations processual shifts of objects habits and ideas across borders migrants work to reassemble a sense of belonging The book delves into the material social and individual efforts involved in this homing process while highlighting the ongoing impact of dispossession and loss By focusing on personal attachments to objects and the broader context of migration this work offers a unique perspective on forced migration home cultures and the quest for ontological security The book will be of interest to scholars researchers and students in disciplines such as anthropology sociology and human geography as well as other research interested in ethnographic perspectives on the respective topics

Vote of Faith Maya Mayblin, 2024-12-03 A richly cinematic and compelling look at priest politicians in Brazil and their religious and secular entanglements What does desire have to reveal about the nature of power Through a detailed focus on the lives and loves of Catholic priests as they enter the profane world of party politics Maya Mayblin explores the complex intersection of democracy patriarchy and religiosity in Brazil For over a hundred years Catholic priests have been running for government office challenging Brazil's constitutional separation of church and state and its self image as a modern secular nation Priests find themselves walking a tightrope between religious and secular demands in one of Brazil's poorest regions Vote of Faith is a beautifully crafted ethnography based upon decades of fieldwork that tells the story of the ambiguous and frequently transgressive relationship between Catholicism and state governance a relationship ultimately mediated by kinship gender and sexuality For the protagonists of Vote of Faith democracy becomes a sphere in which divine will and human ambition compete with one another a tension embedded in the vernacular concept of faith In the Brazilian context faith signifies a complex set of assumptions about the nature of the world assumptions derived not just from Christianity but also from Afro-Brazilian and secular ideas about power causation and human agency In combining ethnographic theological and feminist perspectives Vote of Faith places desiring bodies at the very heart of Catholicism's complex connection to multiple forms of power and offers provocative new angles on the question of the secular The first work by an anthropologist to explore the unique phenomenon of the mayor priest this book offers an essential new angle on emerging debates about secularity as the condition of separation of the religious from the political Brimming with originality Vote of Faith is required reading for those interested in the gendered and sexual dimensions of the secular the plasticity of religion and the fundamental nature of the world's largest religious institution

Foster Children, Rights and the Law Matthew Trail, 2025-03-31 This book discusses child wishes rights and participation in the foster care system Making decisions in a foster child's best interest is a widely used but also widely criticized international legal doctrine. This work discusses the two major legal frameworks: best interest and normalcy, for which foster care decisions are made and how those frameworks might shape how child welfare professionals view and interpret children's rights and participation. Normalcy, the idea that decisions should promote a normal life, is a separate legal doctrine which can be in conflict with best interest determinations. However, the concept of normalcy is also theoretically built into best interest decisions and therefore also plays a role in most child welfare systems. Mixing both empirical legal and child welfare research, the book demonstrates the ways in which risk aversion and fear drive best interest decision making to the detriment of both practitioners and the children they aim to serve. It argues that a children's rights framework starting with normalcy is a better tool for promoting child participation and centering the child within the dependency process. The book will be of interest to academics, researchers, and policymakers working in the areas of children's rights law, child welfare, and international human rights law.

Scientific and Technical Aerospace Reports, 1967 Sensory Arts and Design Ian Heywood, 2017-01-26 Artists, designers, and researchers are increasingly seeking new ways to understand and explore the creative and practical significance of the senses. This ground-breaking book brings art and design into the field of sensory studies, providing a clear introduction to the field and outlining important developments and new directions. A compelling exploration of both theory and practice, Sensory Arts and Design brings together a wide variety of examples from contemporary art and design which share a sensory dimension in their development or user experience. Divided into three parts, the book examines the design applications of new technology with sensing capacities, the role of the senses in creating new imaginative environments, and the significance of the senses within different cultural practices. The thirteen chapters cover a highly diverse range of issues, from the urban environment, architecture, and soundscapes to gustatory art, multisensory perception in painting, music, and drawing, and the relationship between vision and smell. Initiated by Insight, a research group at Lancaster Institute for the Contemporary Arts, widely recognised as a center of research excellence, the project brings together a team of experts from Britain, Europe, and North America. This timely book is destined to make a significant contribution to the scholarly development of this emerging field. An important read for students and scholars in sensory studies, design, art, and visual culture.
